Policing an important part of the local community

O.P.P. officer at CHSS four days a week

by W. Brice McVicar

Don't be surprised if you see an O.P.P. cruiser parked outside Centre Hastings Secondary School this year. Senior Constable Russ Alexander has been placed there as a Community Police Officer.

Alexander, who has been with the Centre Hastings Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police for three and a half years, explained his role there is "proactive." He works at the school to help with intervention and prevention.

Though school has only been in for approximately three weeks Alexander said he's already went around to all the grade nine classes, to introduce himself and talk to the students regarding safety, school rules and other issues. Doing this, he stated, is just one of the preventative measures he has taken.

Centre Hastings Principal Christine Walker said the students are already seeing Alexander as "part of the school community. I think we're a team."

Jeff Day, a student at the school and co-president of student council, said the school is proud to say they've never needed police at their school dances but, with Alexander attending one recently, did admit it's great to have the presence there.

Alexander was at the school last year but this year he'll be on the premises four days a week. Though there hasn't been any major incidents at the school he stressed he's not there "to take people away in handcuffs," but rather to help with intervention, prevent things from happening and provide the students with some options.

Alexander did say there have been times when he had heard "minor rumblings" from students in the school and, through talking with those students involved, has managed to prevent things from happening.

"What you're preventing is immeasurable," he stated.

With last year's horrendous shooting at Colombe High School in Colorado one can't help but wonder if students now feel a little more insecure in school. According to Day, he doesn't feel any less safe but did note that with the tragedy at Colombe it made him realize those types of things can happen and got him wondering about what he would do in that situation.

Principal Walker also stated she didn't think the students felt any less safe but commented, "I think students are talking more about safety."

According to Walker the reaction from students to having an officer at the school has been positive. "Most of the boys know Russ from coaching days."

McCormick says he did not receive invite

In a story which ran in The Madoc Review on August 28th, 1999 it was indicated that MP Larry McCormick had been invited to attend a Centre Hastings Council meeting to discuss the issue of the Deloro Mine site clean-up. McCormick later informed The Review that he never received an invitation to attend the meeting and, therefore, did not inform council whether he would or would not be attending that particular night.

The Review regrets any complications that may have resulted from this miscommunication.

McCormick, however, did attend the September 29th meeting and discussed the matter. Watch next week's paper for story.

Outdoor classroom at Madoc Public School

by W. Brice McVicar

Students at Madoc Public School now have the opportunity to go outside yet still remain within their school. Students returning to school this fall found a change in the environment with the addition of an outdoor classroom.

Vice-principal Suzanne Copeland explained, "Creating an outdoor classroom for science and technology was our intention and it grew out of the courtyard improvement committee."

The equipment which was recently added to the courtyard was another aspect of this program that was tied into the fundraising committee contributing to the funding.

"With this project what really got us started was Steve English organized a baseball tournament for us last spring and got us the initial starting up money."

Copeland stated, "From there the project just grew and basically this project's been totally funded by community and parent donations." Copeland pointed out a list of sponsors which included Barr Construction Ltd., Emco Crane Rentals Inc., Cairn Tech, Crystal Earth Studios, Danford and Sons Equipment Rental, Madoc/Tweed Lions Club, McBeath and Brothers Contracting Ltd., Stoklosar Marble Quarries Ltd., TIM Br Mart, Co-op and Home Hardware. "We had work days that have happened on Saturdays and basically this group of people here contributed to the actualization of our plan because Tom Tidman drew the plan for us and from there, David Hinchcliffe with his engineering experience, helped with where to place things. Copeland also noted that the $1500 donated by the Ma-

C.H.S.S. News

by Jennifer Alexander and Chloe Smith

July 28, 1958 - Terrence Stanley Fox is born in Winnipeg, Manitoba. March 7, 1977 - Terry discovers he has a malignant tumour in his right leg, the leg is amputated six inches above the knee. The night before his operation he reads about an amputee runner and dreams of running. On October 15, 1979 Terry writes to the Canadian Cancer Society to support his run. "I'm not a dreamer, and I'm not saying this will initiate any kind of definitive answer or cure to cancer but I believe in miracles. Have to." Centre Hastings was caring up for their annual Terry Fox run on September 20th. Last year the school raised $1196.00 for Terry Fox Research Society. This year the school's goal was $2200.00. Terry, the staff and students "beat" their goal!

The resignation at Centre Hastings was crowded with many faces for the second weekend in a row. A boys volleyball tournament was held last Saturday at the school and the Junior boys team had an awesome day winning the gold medal. Three students from the school helped out at the tournament. Allison Mitchell, Erin Rollins and Jason Brooks reffed some of the games and also achieved their reffing certifications.

As we enter the fourth week of school things really start to pick up. Centre Hastings' "Hec Hav" was a huge success! All grade nines participated in a fun-filled, spirited period B. Everyone had a lot of fun participating in events such as "Pugsy Back Panic", "Meadow Muffin Munch" and "Cowboy Card Toss". At junior lunch the grade nines were treated to free hot-dogs and pop, compliments of student council, to finish off the morning's events. Congratulations to the "Huckle Berries" who came in first place. Led by CHH (Centre Hastings Intramural Council) member Ben Robinson. Thanks to Jennifer Farges and Tim Rollins and all other CHH members for making it such a blast for all who participated.

Also this week music students will be starting their annual fundraising event of selling chocolates. Chocolate covered almonds, caramel and cappuccino chocolates will be sold for $3 a box. This year, music students are saving up for a trip to "the city that never sleeps", New York Good luck to all music students who are planning to go to New York in the spring. Also, congratulations to everyone who joined junior, senior, jazz band or vocal jazz. This year there are record numbers of ensemble participants. Keep up the good work.

Last week members of jazz vocal were given the opportunity to go to a workshop in Belleville. The doc/Tweed Lions helped to purchase teacher and student resources.

Copeland stated the courtyard project will provide the students with a naturalized environment in which to develop a firm conceptual base of scientific and technological knowledge, skills and values.

"We were looking at having a naturalized area for learning and then there was resources for teachers. Because with the new science and tech curriculum that came out it was important that teachers have the ability to provide hands on activities for the children. The Ministry's very prescriptive about how it would like ideally the science and tech curriculum to be delivered. They're saying that kids learn best with hands on activity," Copeland noted.

The courtyard provides teachers with an area in the school where resources are already available. The new science and technology curriculum states the teacher's role should include experiences with concrete materials. These activities should allow students to discover and learn fundamental concepts through investigation, exploration, observation and experimentation. The courtyard makes it easy for students and teachers to have access to these activities.

With this new curriculum, Copeland commented, they also saw an opportunity for school improvement so they looked at two strands that tie in with science and technology - life systems and earth and space systems.

"The courtyard is intended to be educational," Copeland said, "and eventually what we're trying to do is extend the programs parameters to include art, where we've got a flower press for the kids, and we've got a book on how to draw flowers so, again, some of our intermediate students who are looking at art have a book that instruct them how to use pencil and charcoal and different mediums. We have the environment to go and do some sketches, paintings and et cetera. We're hoping that it'll inspire in the art." She also pointed out that it is hoped to start a grand-pals program in the school and the courtyard would provide a perfect setting for seniors to sit and read to students. As a matter of fact, two of the benches in the yard were designed with seniors in mind.

Some people may feel that students could just as easily learn about nature on field trips to various locations throughout the community but Copeland pointed out the courtyard allows students, who spend a great deal of their time in school, the opportunity to watch the environment change.

"For them to be able to step outside their classroom and look through the observation window and see wildlife happening in their own back yard, I think it will enrich their lives here at school and also stimulate further learning. For kids coming in after recess to see birds out at the feeder and then go and write a story, it provides students with something to write about," Copeland noted. She also noted they will be trying to tie this project in with Bill Mitchell's Environmental Program at Centre Hastings Secondary School. The courtyard will provide a safe environment for students to learn about the environment and wildlife.

The reaction from the student, so far, has been very positive. "They love it. The day that we had a tree-frog climbing on the library window they just went nuts," stated Copeland. The courtyard currently has frogs, toads, a salamander and a tree-frog living in its confines. It is hoped that in the future more wildlife, such as birds, will take up residency in the courtyard.

"It's a way of teaching them about appreciating nature without really disrupting nature," Copeland said.

Country Design studio blossoms near Hastings

Specializes in weddings, special occasions, home accents

By Bill Freeman

Hastings - What started out as a hobby making shower gifts and designing things like natural floral arrangements has become a full-time business for Hastings-area resident Wendy Asseltine.

The Jackson Road resident has added a lovely studio to her Trenside home and now operates "Country Designs," a burgeoning specialty business that offers a wide range of custom-design services and items - from wedding decor, bridal accessories and balloon decorating to special occasion creations, candles and home accents.

Wendy says she has always been interested in this field and has taken several courses in home decoration and floral design.

"It has always been a hobby. I started with shower gifts and floral arrangements," she says.

She and her husband

Sonny moved to their hillside home three years ago and decided that a home studio would help Wendy's design venture expand.

Country Designs opened in February and Wendy has already done work for seven weddings around Northumberland. She anticipates a busy Year 2000.

The first year of the new millennium is bound to be a special year for brides and grooms, she notes.

"We're new and it takes a bit of time," Wendy says. But she has already made something of a mark participating in the St. George's craft show in August and setting up a booth across from the Hastings Arena to sell fresh Mother's Day flowers.

A number of small gifts, candles and some personally designed seasonal items are on sale at the Village Variety in Hastings.

Wendy says she doesn't make a lot of pre-arranged items for sale but rather works closely with individual customers on specific items.

One popular request is building candle containers. The customer selects the colour and scent and Wendy then charges a fee based on candle weight.

"They sell really well," she says.

She has access to approximately 35 different scents and at least 20 different candle styles.

"The selection is incredible."

Working with brides and grooms to help make their special day as memorable and worry-free as possible is obviously something Wendy really enjoys.

"Budgets are the biggest thing and we try to keep them in realistic perspective," she says. "I like to think we do economize for weddings."

Wendy says that because she works with a lot of small entrepreneurs - she can arrange for everything from invitations, linens, wedding cakes and wines to Scottish piping, limousines and photography - the wedding costs are much lower than they would usually be.

"We can economize the price because of all the small entrepreneurs and the low overhead. They're all very good, too."

Wendy says she will often take the wedding bouquet and make it into a flower arrangement.

"It's a fun business. I'm enjoying it."

Rebels clip Napanee in impressive start

Campbellford skaters launch home schedule against Mojaks

Stirling - Playing on temporary home ice at the Stirling Arena, the Campbellford Rebels have launched the Empire Junior Hockey League regular schedule campaign on a victorious foot.

Despite the loss of a number of key members of last year's first-place squad, the Rebels held on in the final period to register a 4-3 victory over the Napanee Raiders Saturday, Sept. 25th.

Rebels skated hard and checked with tenacity in building a 2-2 second period lead. Napanee battled back with determination in the final 20 minutes but goalie Rick Atherton was steady as a rock in holding the Raiders to a single goal to preserve the victory.

Napanee's Dylan Bliss

notched the only goal of the period on a power play with 4:45 remaining. Steve Smith and Matt Jarmin earned assists on the play.

Campbellford outshot the Raiders 24-16.

Take 2-0 lead
Rebels opened the scoring at the 5:14 mark of the first period, capitalizing on a power play opportunity. Nick Bertrand was the

Brighton police office given torch treatment

Trying to burn down the Brighton Community Policing Office is not exactly a way to go about cementing a good relationship with those entrusted to maintain law and order.

On Saturday, Sept. 15th at approximately 2:30 a.m., a neighbouring business owner noticed flames coming from the trailer that is used as the Brighton Community Policing Office and extinguished the flames.

The Brighton Fire Department was called in to ensure the fire was out. Newspaper had been stuffed under the trailer and set on fire. Approximately $500 damage was done to the trailer. Two persons were seen running from the rear of the trailer but no description of the suspects are available.

Police clocked a westbound vehicle on Highway 401 doing 140 km/h in a 100 zone. Upon searching the vehicle, a 1993 Mazda van, an officer located a marihuana roach as well as marksman, assisted by Kevin Cork and Jamie McComb. Rebels made it 2-0 with only 16 seconds remaining in the period as Anthony Davies came through on another power play goal on a play with Kevin Cork, who earned his second assist. Goalie Albritton started the play.

In the second period, Rebels connected again at 16:48, newcomer Ryan Brock getting his first goal with help from Jeff Whitney. Raiders replied on an unassisted goal by Jesse Wansborough just 30 seconds later. It left the Raiders trailing 3-1.

Davies, looking like he's ready to play a more dominant role as a scoring threat for the 1999/2000 squad, clicked for his second goal of the game to give the Rebels more breathing room. Whitney and J. P. Goulah were the playmakers before Davies slammed the puck home.

With 5:03 remaining, Wansborough shaved the margin to two goals for Napanea after taking a pass from Smith.

Rebels return to Campbellford Saturday, Oct. 2nd for their home opener, squaring off against the Port Perry Mojaks in an interlocking contest. Then in their second home ice start of the weekend, Rebels take on the Amherstview Jets Sunday afternoon, starting at 2.

Country Design studio blossoms

ral arrangement and give it to the couple as a special gift for no extra charge.

Little things like that add to the personal connection she emphasizes.

Wendy says the size of the wedding is not a real concern. She has done weddings for as many as 400 guests.

"The size really doesn't matter. Everything is done with the couple in mind."

There is a great deal of relaxed consulting done with the bride and groom and Wendy says the studio location overlooking the Trent River has a calming effect.

"You want it to be as perfect for your business as for the couple. You want them to be happy with your work," she says.

Helping them make their wedding day dreams come true is Wendy's goal.

"Usually the bride and groom have a plan of attack. I wouldn't want to chance their minds."

She says she likes to do the floral designs well in advance so that any changes requested by the couple can easily be accommodated.

"There are so many things to do at the last minute. This is one last thing (for the bride and groom) to worry about."

Wendy even has two pairs of Morning Doves she has used at weddings. Received as a gift, the birds (singing nicely during the service) have become "quite a conversation piece."

Wendy does traditional weddings but has also Western and Victorian weddings as well.

She can provide decor and arrangements for whatever "personal preferences" the bride and groom might want for their wedding.

She says the Victorian and Western styles were actually "very easy to decorate."

Among the things she can provide are quilted bridal albums, parent albums, guest books, custom cake tops, glasses, gifts, custom-made train rings and bridal hand-bags and garters. She can even furnish a pen set for signing the registry.

Wendy says she will decorate a hall for anniversaries but does not do parties -- she has things available for parties like balloon bouquets.

"It's a fun business. It's not like a nine to five job," Wendy says. "I'm enjoying it."

"I like the studio. It is a nice room to work in."

Jack Read Warner

Jack Read Warner passed away Aug. 31 after a two-year battle with cancer. He is sadly missed by his wife of 52 years, Elva, and his children Sandra, Lenore, Beverly and John.

Jack was the loving grandfather of Andre, Rene, Desmond, Ronald, Brian and Carley and great-grandfather of Austin. He was the dear brother of Rena, Muriel and Irvin and was predeceased by his sister Velma.

Born in Asphodel Township on Sept. 4, 1924, Jack was the proud son of Mabel and Ernest Warner. He lived in Hastings for many years where he attended Fife's School.

On Oct. 18, 1947, Jack married Elva Ellen Kempt. He owned and operated an oil business in Norwood for 22 years then spent another 22 years driving a school bus before retiring in June, 1997.

Jack was involved in several organizations. He was a life member of the Norwood Lions Club, an active member of the Norwood Agricultural Society, part of the O.H.H.A. and a volunteer firefighter.

The visitation was held at the Norwood and District Funeral Home where the Norwood Lions conducted a memorial service.

The funeral service was held Sept. 3 at Norwood United Church with Reverend Paul Peters Derry officiating. Interment was at the Asphodel-Norwood Cemetery. An Honour Guard was formed by members of the Lions Club which included Bernard Heffernan, Tom Deen, Hugh Chaplin, Glenn Hodge, Dave McNeil, Scott Stewart, Ross Hinds, Clarke Holmes and Larry Urquhart. The pallbearers at the service were Earl Oliver, Jack Begg, Ray Begg, Murray Fife, Ron Warner, Doug Pearcey, Dave Elliott and Murray Ross.

Enjoyable IODE coffee party

Bemersyde IODE members hosted a coffee party Sept. 22nd at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. In an atmosphere of pleasant surroundings and hospitality, Regent Shirley Simpson and Membership Officer and Convenor Dorothy Locklin welcomed members and guests.

A leisurely time of browsing was spent among the IODE displays. An Education table, presided over by Assistant Education Officer Sheila Peters, showed our efforts in education in our community and our adopted Labrador classrooms.

The Services table, supervised by Services Officers Teresa Shaw and Gail Donald, was abundantly supplied with a beautiful array of knitted articles, The Communications table, managed by Communications Officer Chris Whitfield, displayed IODE picture albums, record-keeping books, Echoes magazines and information items.

Of interest was the showing of a quilt made in the war years. Individual names had been inscribed and incorporated into the pattern. At a cost of 10 cents a name this was created as a means of supporting the war effort. Surely, a unique slice of Campbellford and area community history.

Convenor Dorothy Locklin then invited everyone to participate in our coffee/muffin refreshment time. Marilyn Murray, national/provincial councillor, spoke of services within the community. A video of the IODE organization was shown by Marie Locke, National Membership Officer. Discussions followed.

IODE has given support to the Campbellford Playgroup, who meet each week at the Presbyterian Church. A large, decorated mural saying "Thank You, IODE" and signed by each child, was hanging on the wall. What a lovely surprise. Thank you Angie Nestoruk and the Campbellford Playgroup.

To discuss Antimicrobial Resistance

By Mark Leahy
OMAFRA Brighton

There is still time to register for the "Agriculture's Role in Managing Antimicrobial Resistance" conference Oct. 24-26 at the International Plaza Hotel in Toronto.

Speakers from across North America as well as Sweden, Belgium and Denmark will enlighten delegates on the subject.

Antimicrobial resistance (AMR) is the ability of bacteria to develop resistance to new wonder drugs. This has become a major challenge to both the human and veterinary medical communities.

The October conference offers a unique opportunity to explore the connection between agricultural practices and the development of antimicrobial resistance in humans, animals and food.

It was also time to bid a fond farewell to Judy Sauve, Norwood and District Co-Ordinator. Judy will be missed by all.

The new executive is Patsy Coppertwaite, Co-Ordinator; Sharon Grills, Assistant Co-Ordinator; and Mary Mann, Treasurer.

If you would like more information on the Therapy Dog Program, please contact: Patsy Coppertwaite at (705) 653-1341, Monica Morris at (705) 653-2029, and Sharon Grills at (705) 653-2168.

Furniture fanciers!

Thieves obviously looking for a big discount on furniture weren't too subtle sometime overnight Sept. 28/29 when they entered the Old Oak Tree Furniture store in Hamilton Township.

Northumberland OPP said the front entrance to the store was smashed before the thieves removed a pair of night stands, a pair of end tables and a green sofa. Stolen property is valued at $4,500. A police investigation continues.

Police chase lands Toronto woman in court

Pursuit lasted over 75 km on Highway 7...

Havelock - A Toronto woman will appear in court on October 28 after a police chase on September 26 that lasted for over 75 kilometres.

At approximately 8 p.m. Kawartha OPP received a complaint of an erratic driver east bound on Highway 7 in the Havelock area. One of the Kawartha officers attempted to pull the vehicle over but the driver refused to stop and a pursuit followed.

Centre Hastings OPP set up a roadblock near Madoc however the vehicle refused to stop and continued east bound along the highway. Due to the fact that the driver was operating the vehicle in a dangerous fashion putting the public at risk, the chase was terminated and the officers continued to follow at a safe distance. Kaladar and Sharbot Lake OPP officers were then called in and deployed two spike belts in the Village of Kaladar. The vehicle drove over both belts which punctured all the tires. The driver continued for a short distance operating on the vehicle's rims but was stopped and arrested. No injuries occurred to the driver or any other member of the public.

Charged with Dangerous Driving under the Criminal Code and Fail To Stop For Police is Krystyna Dembowy, 46.

The Centre Hastings OPP Detachment is asking that any member of the public which may have witnessed this incident at approximately 8 p.m. to call Ken Salisbury at 613-473-4234.

and that makes a big difference, he's not a stranger in the school.

"I haven't heard one negative thing," Day said. "Sure, you'll hear somebody grumbling about a police officer in the school but whenever I hear somebody I'll explain to them why he's here. People are generally very open when you explain it to them." Day said while some people may have stereotypes against police officers once they understand why Alexander is there they are comfortable.

While the Ontario Provincial Police have assigned officers to schools in other parts of Ontario this is something new for Centre Hastings OPP and Alexander explained. "We police what we call zones and they include Marmora, which takes in Marmora and Lake, and there's Madoc, which takes in Huntingdon, Madoc and Tudor, and there's Tweed, which takes in Hungerford, Elzevir and Grimsby, and I can't picture any students not coming from one of those zones. That's the area that we police and, as you know, community policing the modern way of doing things and that takes in all three communities and about 200 students come into this town everyday. School is school, everybody comes here to learn, everyone progresses socially and develops all kinds of skills. We need there's a lot to school, from simply learning and doing things where students learn about rules and regulations.

Alexander noted one of the goals of having him in the school is to change students' attitude towards officers, whether they be at their school or out in the community. While it's too early to tell if that goal is being achieved he stressed that is a major goal of his presence.

"I think the Belleville Police have a partnership with the schools there and it's working really well," Walker stated. "We just feel really lucky that we have Russ here for four days a week."

According to Alexander, Centre Hastings Secondary School is a safe school. He explained he did work in other area schools and, so far, has found the school to be good and he said, "It's unique because it takes in three communities of youth and it's a good opportunity to work together."

In conjunction with Alexander's presence, grade 11 student Erin Danford will be working with a Student Crime Stoppers Program as well as being a member of the Community Issues Committee in Madoc.

Detachment Commander Bryn Pollard, who could not be at the press conference, issued a statement which read "When Centre Hastings Secondary School is open it becomes a community in and of itself with several of the same issues confronting other communities. I have assigned Constable Alexander to work in cooperation with the school administration, staff and students to help identify and resolve their issues."

"Constable Alexander is well known by most of the students. They trust him and know they can come to him for advice and guidance."

MP Larry McCormick attends council to discuss Deloro

Expresses unhappiness with local media coverage

by W. Brice McVicar

MP Larry McCormick attended the September 29th Centre Hastings council meeting to discuss the Deloro mine issue and to hear council's concerns.

Reeve Tom Deline welcomed McCormick and told him, "We appreciate your coming here." Deline noted there must have been a breakdown in communication when it came to McCormick receiving an invitation to the August 25th meeting to discuss Deloro. McCormick said he never received an invitation and was upset by the story that appeared in The Madoc Review that week stating he had been invited but had failed to attend. Deline told McCormick he'd like to "put that behind us."

McCormick noted that he has had his job for six years and he gets invited to 3000 things a year and this was the first time that he has made the front page of a newspaper when he was not in attendance at a meeting.

"It's interesting to note that we received calls from three political parties," McCormick said concerning the article. He went on to note that he believed it was council's responsibility to know what information would be appearing in their local newspaper.

"We didn't receive an invitation," McCormick stated.

Reeve Tom Deline simply told McCormick, "Next time we'll do it by registered letter. If we didn't do anything else, Larry, we got your attention."

When it came to the Deloro issue McCormick stated it was 19 and a half years ago when he first walked across the site and stated they knew about it back in 1986 or 1987 and.

"You saw what was running into the river."

There has been over $20 million spent at Deloro. McCormick noted, and he recently went to the Minister of the Environment to get a new package going. He went on to say he's heard the discussion that there was waste deposited at Deloro from the Manhattan Project but he has seen no documents that confirm that.

McCormick told council that there was $10 million spent in Deloro on studies and tests and he'd like to know where that money has gone. He added that in the world of business timing is everything and right now Ontario stands as the second worst for the environment just behind Texas.

"There's been too much dillyng and dallyng," Reeve Deline stated. "There's been too many studies."

Resident goes to bat for beavers

by W. Brice McVicar

Beavers, dams and trapping the buck-toothed rodents was a topic of discussion at the September 29th Centre Hastings council meeting.

A letter had been received from Mrs Robert Legate complaining about the trapping of beavers and the unwanted changes it has caused on his property.

The letter states: "The overly aggressive killing of beavers and ripping out of their dams has eliminated the reserve ponds needed to sustain the (Rawdon) creek during dry spells. This is the second major dry spell I have experienced since I purchased my property seven years ago. The first one I remember clearly because I had planted 2000 whip trees from the ministry nursery that same spring. It was a worse dry spell than this summer but the creek kept flowing. This was due to the reserve ponds the beavers have created. Now those ponds are gone and so is the creek!"

Legate stated in the letter that the trapping of beavers has caused damage to his property and Rawdon Creek has been dry since August. He pointed out a major factor in his purchasing the property was because of the creek and the wildlife it supported.

Legate's letter stated "This activity sanctioned by the township and carried out by the trail committee for the sake of two to three months of snowmobiling is unacceptable and non-justifiable." He noted the only road that could be washed out would be Ray Road which is seasonal at the Rawdon Creek end and is virtually not used except for snowmobiles, ATV's and dirt bikes.

Reeve Tom Deline suggested Legate take his concerns to the trail committee although he did acknowledge the municipality had hired an individual for trapping beavers.

"If we're talking about trapping beavers along the trail, we had to because of a potential for wash out," Deline stated.

Legate said he wasn't surprised that he had to attend council with his letter but found it unfortunate.

Deline informed Legate that the municipality does have a legal obligation to prevent wash outs and pointed out that should be kept in mind.

Legate told council he has walked the trail with the Lower Trent Conservation Authority and there are other viable options to maintain the trail without trapping beavers. He also noted this is the first time since he has moved to his property that he has had problems with the level of water in his well.

Legate said the LTRCA told him that the water level could be kept at a two foot level below the trail bed without potential of flooding. He also said it is true that not all beaver dams are good but the ones that need to be left could be fixed by having pipes in the dams below the water line so water levels can be managed and the beavers are tricked not to raise the level of their dams. Reserve ponds can be maintained as well as the integrity of the trail.

"Three years ago these things were brought to the Centre Hastings officer cleared by SIU

The Ontario Special Investigations Unit have cleared a Centre Hastings OPP officer of any responsibility who was involved in a motorcycle accident on August 30th, 1999.

On August 30th the OPP officer observed a motorcycle travelling at a high rate of speed on the Shannonville Road. The officer followed the motorcycle onto the Blessington Side Road where it crashed shortly thereafter into a culvert. The driver of the motorcycle was subsequently charged. The SIU has completed their investigation.

McCormick agreed with Deline and stated, "I'd seen a problem then, 19 and a half years ago."

Reeve Deline told McCormick council's main concern with the Deloro case is to stop the infiltration of arsenic into Moira Lake. Deline stated the treatment facility does its job with an 80% reduction of arsenic but "there is still more arsenic going into Moira Lake then should."

Deline stressed to McCormick that council wanted to "stop infiltration of arsenic into the Moira Lake watershed."

Councillor Larry Mitz told McCormick, "I worked at Deloro, not for a long time or I don't think I'd be here, and I heard it's a second Love Canal, it's that badly polluted." Mitz said if that is true then it will take an awfully long time to clean it up. Mitz also noted that because of the federal government's involvement in the war there is a moral obligation of the federal government to assist in the clean up.

For the amount of money that's been put in there you'd think they could stop some of the contamination," McCormick stated. He also added that he has been trying to get people's attention by saying that Deloro is the second worst environmental site in Canada.

Reeve Deline asked about the aspect of the federal government looking into the diversion of the river. Deline noted if the contamination is running into a river that falls under Fisheries and Oceans and, therefore, that falls into federal government jurisdiction.

McCormick agreed and told council to put their concerns in a letter he can take with him to Toronto. He asked them to "put everything you have in a K.I.S.S. (keep it simple, stupid) format for me." He explained to council that they have "two or three hot button issues" they are currently working on and he encouraged council to send a letter to the Provincial Minister as well as sending one to their provincial member to take along.

Councillor David Schulz told McCormick that the mine closed in 1902 and was then involved in smelting which the federal government and other foreign countries were involved in which resulted in radioactive contamination.

"Doesn't that fall into federal jurisdiction?" he questioned.

Schulz said the creation of the whole mess was for the federal government's advantage and, therefore, the federal government should be giving money to help with the clean-up.

It was noted there has been $18 million spent at Deloro but a great deal of that money has been used to study the results of studies.

Councillor Mitz stated there is no choice because things have to be studied before any action can be taken to properly deal with a situation.

Reeve Deline said, "I don't want to get into the argument about who's responsible for Deloro." He again told McCormick they just want the Moira Lake situation dealt with and for this to be over.

McCormick said he would take council's letter, personally, to the Minister of Environment as well as to the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans.

"You're right in directing me to do this," McCormick stated and added he felt it was time the federal government got their act in gear.

Dogs take centre stage...

Stately fairgrounds visitors: The Norwood Fairgrounds once again played host to hundreds of canine guests during the Pine Ridge Kennel Club's annual all-breed championship dog show and obedience trials. The three-day event at the Brethren Coliseum also included a junior handling competition and the Siberian Husky Club of Canada's specialty show. There were 279 registered entrants on Friday, 420 on Saturday and 367 on Sunday. Among the entrants was Alberto (far left), a 2 1/2-year-old Great Dane owned by Karin Von Kengbock of Cobourg. Joining Alberto in the photo are his six-month-old daughters Jacqueline and Jennifer who are with Christine Buckley. Puppy Jacqueline had much to be excited about after taking a Best Puppy and Best of Winners Award. Karin has been a breeder of registered Great Danes and Rottweilers for 28 years and says she enters 20 shows a year. In fact, the first show she entered was the 1971 Pine Ridge Show at Trinity College, in Port Hope where she won her first five points. "I just love it," she says. Photo/Bill Freeman

Gritty play could be secret of success for new Rebels

By Rolly Ethier

Until reaching the Empire League playoffs last season, the Campbellford Rebels waltzed through the opposition. In the process, they put together one of the most spectacular winning records any where in Ontario junior C hockey ranks.

Coach Frank Toms readily admitted to being a little nervous about the Rebels making it look too easy. He prefers his team playing the old-fashioned way—working tenaciously for every inch on the ice. In that way complacency is not likely to set in.

Toms' concern about a possible letdown last season proved correct. Rebels put together a 28-game unbeaten streak just before the playoffs got underway. The rest of what transpired is, as they say, history.

It was a disappointing shocker for the Rebels, rated as one of the top three junior C teams in Ontario following regular scheduled play, as they bowed out to the Picton Pirates in the final round. It did go seven games but after a glorious season, elimination was a major let-down for both the players and management.

That defeat didn't sit too well with coach Toms. And he and his coaching staff would like nothing better than to redeem that performance despite the loss of such seasoned veterans as Kevin Larmer, Travis Turner, Ian Petey and the Empire League scoring leader Ryan Toms, the coach's son.

Big Challenge

That's a mighty big challenge but Toms believes his skaters are equal to the task.

"I would far prefer seeing our guys work hard in every game, improving as we go along into the season," said Toms before a recent game. "Performing well in close games builds character."

"Our goal is to have them peak at the right time," he noted in reference to the 1998-99 playoff defeat to Picton.

"I'm quite upbeat about our chances," he declared. "We've lost some of our outstanding players but we've filled the void with a lot of promising newcomers. We believe we're extremely competitive. We're definitely younger and we've got a good mixture of holdovers and newcomers. We've added some good, young talent with players like Jeff Whitney, Nick Bertrand, Darryl English and Ryan Brock."

At least in the first three games of the regular Empire League schedule, Toms

It's pumpkin carving time at the library

Children's story hour has returned

Asphodel-Norwood - Children's story hour is back at both the Norwood and Westwood branches of the Township Library.

Program co-ordinator Anne Flagler is Westwood Wednesdays from 2 pm until 3 pm and in Norwood Thursdays during the same time.

Pre-schoolers, their moms, dads or caregivers, are invited to drop in for the story hour and craft session. The adults can enjoy a nice cup of coffee while their children have fun with the activities. There will be juice and a snack at the end of the session for the youngsters.

Of special note of interest, is a pumpkin carving and painting program for children of all ages. The library will host on Oct. 23 each branch. Children are asked to bring their own pumpkins and a canned food item for the food bank, instead of a voluntary contribution.

There will be sign-up sheets in each library for the Halloween pumpkin carving sessions. The program in Norwood will get underway at 10 am and will run for approximately one hour. In the afternoon, between 1:30 pm and 2:30 pm, the program will take place in Westwood.

Again, don't forget to bring a pumpkin and canned item for the food bank.

ENCORE PERFORMANCE

The engineers at Yamaha have done it again. Fresh from the wildly successful introduction of the unstoppable Grizzly, we went right back to the drawing board and designed another phenomenally versatile ATV.

Introducing the Kodak Ultramatic. The simple-to-use Kodak Ultramatic is truly an engineering accomplishment. It's the lightest in its class and boasts a lengthy list of features that make it as revered as the species that inspired it. Begin with the "Ultramatic" automatic transmission incorporating effective engine braking and a new basic rack, single-knob parking brake system. Add an all-new, liquid-cooled 400cc powerplant and Yamaha's On Command™ 24V to 60V shift system and the recreational potential is obvious. Sturdy steel racks shoulder over 250 lbs while 1100 lbs of towing capacity proves the Kodak Ultramatic's muscle when the fun turns to work. The Kodak Ultramatic may share many of the characteristics of a performance ATV including class-leading engine performance and a long travel suspension, but don't underestimate this beast. Put it to the test, it never refuses a challenge and like its predecessor, nothing works like a Yamaha Real.

Drivers ensure meals arrive hot

Tweed - Hot, nutritious meals are delivered to seniors and shut-ins three days a week through the Gateway Community Centre's Meals on Wheels program. To make the program run smoothly requires dedicated volunteer drivers to deliver the meals. On Oct. 1st five drivers were on hand at the Tweed Curling Club to pick up the meals and deliver them to 26 clients in the area. On this day the drivers, all seniors themselves, were each presented with flowers in recognition of their support for the program and to mark the International Day of the Older Person. The five drivers, shown here with the insulated carrying bags they use to deliver the meals, are (front, from left), Don Courmeyea, Norma Quinn, and Muriel Marisset; Findlay Quinn, (rear left) and Bernard McDonnell, (rear right). The meals are prepared by Sherry Luffman. Each of the clients also received a flower to mark the day. - BD Photo appears to have a team that comes to battle tooth-and-nail every night. They may not be as polished offensively as previous Rebel teams in recent years but make up in grit and determination what they seem to lack in scoring skill.

Certainly in the first three games of the season, the Rebels have been giving coach Tom exactly what he is looking for - being competitive in the close games.

All Games Close

After shading the Napanee Raiders 4-3 in game one on Stirling ice, Rebels split their first two starts in Campbellford last weekend. After dropping a 4-2 verdict to the Port Perry Mojacks in an interlocking match-up Saturday night, Rebels bounced back to nose out the Amherstview Jets Sunday afternoon.

A third period goal by defenceman and captain Kevin Cork was the difference as the Rebels defused the Jets. His goal was the only scoring mustered by both teams in a hard-checking final period. However, goalie Ken Huggins kept the Jets in the game most of the way as the Rebels outshot the visitors 41-20. Goalie Rick Albritton was also solid for the Rebels.

Cork's game-winner came on a power play, a blast from the point after a passing exchange between Anthony Davies and Ryan Binkley.

Rebels came out of the first period with a 2-1 lead. Ryan Culhane opened the scoring unassisted for the Rebels and the Jets evened the count with a power play goal by Adam Candon.

Then with 2:57 remaining, J. P. Goulah connected as he worked with Ryan Brock and Jack McLaren.

In the second period, Jets climbed back onto even terms with only 26 seconds remaining as Derek Mack got the puck past Albritton on a play with Brandon Forest and Kris Croomes.

Great Netminding

Goalie Jeff Mackie was the major reason Port Perry was able to escape with a victory over the Rebels in the Saturday night game. His acrobatics, and the Rebels' inability to take advantage of power play opportunities, were the key ingredients in another hard-fought contest.

Both Rebel goals came in the first period. Jamie McComb scoring a power play goal with assists going to Kyle McMurray and Jeff Whitney, and Anthony Davies also connecting with a manpower advantage. Goulah and Lee VanHuizen assisted on the play.

After that Mackie completely thwarted the Rebels while Jeff Clarke, Bill Beaulieu and Nick Pelyk scored for the Mojacks. Dale Drummond was the first period marksman for the visitors.

Rebels' next home game is Saturday, Oct. 9th at 8 p.m. against the defending champion Picton Pirates. The Rebels also have an after-game dance planned at the Legion Hall.

Meals on Wheels Week

As you know Oct. 4th-9th is Meals on Wheels Week in Ontario. It is a week set aside to acknowledge the many volunteers in the community.

In the Campbellford, Hastings, Roseville and Warkworth areas, Community Care Services has 55 dedicated volunteers who prepare and deliver the meals to those clients who find it difficult to prepare their own meals.

In Campbellford, the meals are prepared by the Campbellford Memorial Hospital kitchen staff and delivered Tuesday through Friday at noon. In Hastings and Roseville, the meals are delivered on Tuesday and Friday at noon, and in Warkworth, the meals are delivered on Wednesday at noon. These are hot, nutritious meals that are delivered by a friendly caring volunteer. In addition to the hot meals, frozen entrees are available at all times in the Community Care office.

Community Care coordinator Diane Provost reminds that if you know a senior neighbour or a relative who might enjoy this service, they should contact the Campbellford office at 653-1411 or the Hastings office at 696-3891. And with the holidays approaching, gift certificates are available for Meals On Wheels at $4.50 each. They can be purchased at either Community Care office.

There is always a need for new volunteers in the program, said Mrs. Provost. Any one wishing to help out in the catchment area are asked to give Community Care a call.

Asphodel-Norwood - The September meeting of the Norwood Community School Council chaired by Sharon Stanley proved to be an encouraging beginning to the new year.

Principal Walt Greenway introduced the remaining Council executive to the numerous attending parents. Len Rance will be teacher representative and Brandt Peet student liaison.

Brian Bradshaw, head of the Guidance Department, was introduced. He informed the Council on what he hoped the Guidance Dept. will accomplish this year with personal counselling and programming. University and college information will be available to students shortly and an "information night" will be held for parents and students.

Information regarding scholarships and prerequisites needed would be available in the Guidance office for student browsing. Mr. Bradshaw said.

Guidance help will be given for the new Grade 9 Educational Plan informing students what they will need to get to their destination - planning ahead for courses which cannot be offered each year.

Mr. Greenway then led Council members on a tour of the school to show everyone the improvements that have taken place this past year.

The Resource Centre itself has new computers with a re-designed layout. The lecture hall has been divided into two sections -- the back section, closest to the entrance door, is to be used by senior students as a study area. The north end, beside the stage, is to be used by Drama classes -- a dinner theatre is being planned for the fall.

The hallway between the main office and the business wing has been painted and the school board plans to continue the painting process through the school over the next few years.

Rooms 119 and 120 are now new computer labs. The old greenhouse in the courtyard has been removed and the block-work for the new structure is in place. Len Rance and his Construction Class will reassemble the new greenhouse this fall.

The Communications Technology classroom has a new computer lab, editing booth and a radio booth.

The completed weight room on the stage of the gym was the next stop on the tour. It has removable gates and the equipment can be moved to the rear of the stage and drapes hung when needed. Students will have access to the equipment on a daily basis.

The Family Studies room has a new dishwasher and kitchen equipment. The grade eight Resource room has been moved downstairs and re-designed to be more efficient.

At the cafeteria stop, Beaver Foods have redesigned the kitchen to make it more efficient and given a new colour scheme to the serving area -- more repainting is to be done.

Rounding out the tour was a stop at Room 109 where new desks have been purchased -- a classroom per year will receive new desks.

Vice Principal Mina Murphy reported on teacher changes at the Intermediate level and the method of reporting to parents. The TAG program (teacher advisor group) will focus on "homework" this semester.

To aid in this work the grade eight and nine students received free school agendas -- the money was provided by the Student Council. These are to help students organize their time.

A new guidance period is being planned for Grade eight under the direction of teacher Dan Selby. This will include working with student portfolios and career planning. Teacher Dave Lorentz is planning a program that will allow students to become more familiar with the IBM computers.

Student representative, Brandy Peet, reported on the Student Council's first day assembly, Spirit Day and Grade eight welcome which were all well-received by students. The Chocolate Campaign, Terry Fox Run and the sale of Student Packages were all ready to roll.

The School Development Committee reported that they would continue the Knight of the Month. The new school letters are almost ready for installation on the outside front of the school. New ideas for the inside of the school include plans to create an area to display student art work and to continue painting in the cafeteria.

Developing greater respect for school property will be addressed at intervals during the school year.

Two motions for financial support were made, discussed and passed.

The Council will provide funds to cover the cost of an amplifier system for the Communications Technology students who prepare and play radio programs for the noon-hour.

Financial support was given to the Physical Education Department so they could invite speaker Sue Johansen to present two assemblies -- one to grade nine and ten and another for senior students. These would be held in conjunction with the Health Fair.

Chairperson Sharon Stanley gave her report on upcoming workshops and questioned the interests of the group for future meetings. One suggestion was inviting local OPP Const. Jen Patton to discuss the role of the police in the school.

STAY AWAY FROM FALLEN WIRES

Ice storms, high winds or fallen tree limbs can bring hydro lines down. Even a fallen wire that seems dead can be dangerous. Warn others to keep clear and call your local hydro for the police to report the fallen wire. If there's a live power line touching your vehicle, stay inside until a hydro crew removes the line, putting even your foot on the ground can be a trap. Do not move to make it safe. You must leave because you could be electrocuted. Do not jump clear without warning the car and the ground at the same time. For advice or assistance, call the Customer Communications Centre at 1-800-364-6376 or visit our website at www.onhydro.com for more safety information.

Bannockburn man helping to clothe third world nations

by W. Brice McVicar

A load of clothes recently left Bannockburn with a route that will take it to third world countries.

On October 3rd a truck loaded full of clothes left from Peter Dibben's home and, after being delivered to Guelph, will be flown to third world countries to help less fortunate people residing on that side of the world.

Dibben, who recently graduated from Bible College, explained about a year ago he went to a warehouse in Guelph, run by E.R.D.O. (Emergency Relief and Development Overseas) where they send containers of food, clothing, bicycles, of medical supplies and other various materials all around the world.

"Since then," Dibben stated, "I've started collecting clothes to send to this outfit." He said the project snowballed on him as it started out small and ended with him getting a tractor trailer to transport the collected clothes to the warehouse. Dibben said a friend of his who is a tractor trailer driver talked with his boss, who offered their services free of charge to move the clothes. It resulted in a 53 foot container full of clothes being moved.

"It's all local," Dibben said when asked where the clothes came from. "Madoc, Marmora, Tweed, some came from individuals, some from second hand clothing stores. The word just started getting around and I've been picking it up and people have been dropping it off and it's coming out of the woodwork."

Dibben said there were all types of clothing donated including mens' clothes, childrens', womens' clothing, suitcases, boots, shoes, handbags... "You name it, if you can wear it we had it."

Dibben said he would, eventually, like to go overseas and hand out the clothes that are donated. "Everyday in the news you hear about people, whether it be in Indonesia or Kosovo or earthquakes in Turkey or whatever, there's always need and I just see that we have so much over here. Some of the ladies that I picked this stuff up from said to me if I didn't pick it up they'd have to throw it in the dump because they have no room for it. I'm just trying to fill a need. People on the other side of the world do need these clothes and I'm just happy to do my part to help them get them." He pointed out there is no financial remuneration for what he has done, it's all strictly volunteer.

"It's an on-going thing," Dibben said. "In fact, I'm already working on my next load. We went on Saturday with the truck and before I had a chance to sweep out the front room on Sunday. Continued on page 16

Money donated for defibrillator: The Conner-Remington Women's Institute delivered a cheque for $1500 to the Madoc Township Fire Department on Tuesday evening. The ladies raised the funds by selling tickets on a beautiful quilt and the draw was also held at the fire hall. See page 14 for the winner's name. Photo by W. Brice McVicar

Madoc Township Public School hosts SG Junior Girls Soccer

Thursday, October 7th the Madoc Township Public School hosted the Junior Girls SG Soccer Meet. Teams from Marmora, Stirling, Tweed and Madoc Public arrived at 9:30 a.m. where they began soccer play immediately.

The Madoc Township Public School team played very well, they had three losses and a tie, but being a very young team were defeated by the more experienced players from the other schools. All in all, the day seemed to be of great experience for the young team and their coach, Steve Badgley.

The A Championship was played at one in the afternoon with Stirling, coached by Greg Richardson, against Tweed, coached by Bonnie Cromwell. Both teams came into the A championship undefeated. The girls all showed great enthusiasm and experience as they played but the Tweed team had more endurance and won the final game 3 to 0.

The B Championship was played at the same time with Madoc Public School, coached by Julie Cooney, playing against Marmora, coached by Lionel Dunlop. The game was very exciting for everyone involved and Marmora came out on top with the victory with a score of 5 to 4.

All teams showed great sportsmanship and everyone should be very proud.

A special thank you to Sandra Brae and Jo-anne Lemmon for the wonderful lunch provided for all the athletes.

Council looks at snowplowing, libraries and municipal logos

by W. Brice McVicar

There were many smaller issues dealt with by Centre Hastings council at their September 29th meeting.

One of these issues was snowploughing. Reeve Delinc asked Roads Foreman Jim Wilson if there had been any coordinating of snowploughing for the winter and Wilson informed him that they had not started that yet.

Reeve Delinc stressed that something should be organized quickly but Wilson told him that two men require training while another has not yet taken the test for licensing.

Everybody needs to be trained on everything, Delinc stated. "We're too small a community to have expertise on everything. You've got to be prepared. He added that if each man has some knowledge in each aspect of the job things will run smoothly and there shouldn't be too much trouble.

Wilson also told council that the Roads Department is in need of a new half tonne truck. He explained the one they are currently using requires some brake work and body work.

Delinc told Wilson it would be discussed at the committee level. He added they didn't necessarily need a brand new truck but also suggested there could be other avenues that could be taken. Delinc suggested the current truck should be fixed immediately if Wilson has any insecurities about driving it.

Busy weekend with motor vehicle accidents for Centre Hastings OPP

Centre Hastings OPP charges

Two kept busy over the weekend with many accidents none too far from town.

On Saturday, October 16th at approximately 9:30 p.m. Eric Hammen, age 17 of Springbrook, turned southbound onto Highway 11 at Concession 5 of Thurlow Township and struck a southbound vehicle driven by John Buxton, age 18 of Marysville. Hammen was charged with Turn Not In Safety.

On Sunday, October 17th at approximately 3 p.m. on Highway 401, west of Hillaire Road, OPP investigated a four vehicle accident. Two vehicles travelling westbound stopped due to stopped traffic ahead on the 401 when both vehicles were rear-ended. Charged were William Magee, age 70 of London, Ontario and Randall Donkers, age 45 of London, Ontario, with Follow Too Closely.

Centre Hastings OPP investigated 11 other accidents two resulting in injuries.

Sing and celebrate

The Madoc Wesleyan and Free Methodist Church hosted an evening hymn sing last Sunday. After an opening prayer and welcome was extended to the 25 people in attendance, the first selection (Joyful, Joyful We Adore Thee) echoed through the church.

The celebration in song continued with the talented accompaniment of Marg Kempton on the organ and Judy Holmes playing the piano. Two testimonies of how God's grace and healing touched their lives were given by Norma Stuckwood and Selina Knight. Norma talked about the angels that stayed with her in the hospital during her stay after her heart attack last year. Mrs. Knight was visiting Joan Turner from England. The two started as penpals in the eighth grade and have been dear friends ever since. It was wonderful to have her share her testimony with us that night and look forward to any future visits.

Katherine Fleming of the Stirling United Church performed a beautiful solo of How Great Thou Art. We certainly hope Katherine will join us again soon.

Curt Brinkman, organizer of this event, says this is just the first of what he hopes will be a monthly gathering. The next hymn sing is taking place on Sunday, October 24th at 7 p.m. Everyone is welcome, come and bring a friend.

ROOM FOR RANT

by W. Brice McVicar

While watching the NBC Today Show the other morning I caught a story about a possible new law in New York state that would prohibit anyone under the age of 18 from playing violent video games in public arcades.

They had a gentleman on who stated these games are not toys but a machine that simulates killing and, therefore, is training young people the skills they require to kill people. He was talking particularly about video arcade games that have "guns" that are used to shoot "people" in the game. The one game he played on television had the player shooting zombies. These games, according to him, gave kids the perfect idea on how to shoot and kill.

If you read my column regularly you're probably aware of how I feel about this topic or anything to do with censorship of this type. Unfortunately, I'm not allowed to print what I truly feel.

These games are just that, games! I can't understand how anyone could state they are training people how to kill. If that's true how are they any different than someone going into the woods with a real gun and shooting animals? Doesn't that train people how to stalk, be quiet, watch carefully and, ultimately, kill? I have no trouble with hunting. No, I'm not a hunter myself but I see no problem with the sport.

A letter was read on the show from a young viewer and he explained it perfectly, these games are an escape from reality. These games don't create violence but, if anything, prevent it. If a kid (and I'm not talking about a five year old) has had a bad day and wants to relieve stress isn't it better for him to play one of these games as opposed to going to dad's gun cabinet and taking one of the rifles to school the next day?

I realize since the horrible incident at Columbine High School a great deal of people are becoming more in tune to these games, movies and other paraphernalia but I truly don't believe getting rid of them is the answer. Here's an idea, why don't these parents start spending more time with their kids and see what they're doing as opposed to marching up to Ottawa or Washington to start some new bill. What are the kids doing while their Mom or Dad are on a political rampage? Sitting home watching Barney or Teletubbies?

I grew up watching violent movies and playing these games. They didn't make me violent, they let me blow off steam after a stressful day and they still do!

After a bad day I'll still go home and throw on a film like Dawn of the Dead and, admittedly, after watching it I feel better. Is that because all day I've had visions of killing people? No, it's just a way to ESCAPE! Some people do worse things to get rid of their stress like drinking themselves into a stupor, smoking some crack or even beating the wife and kids. So, I guess because me and thousands of others relax this way we're the sick ones, am I right?

I could go on for days because this is an issue that gets me stirred up every time I hear about it but I won't. All I'm trying to say is that some people do sick things because they're not right in the head. Violence has nothing to do with movies and games, it has something to do with the individual.

United Nations Conference to be held in Belleville

by Laurie McVicar

Fourteen schools within the Hastings and Prince Edward District School Board are expected to take part in the third annual Model United Nations Conference at St. James Whitties School, Belleville on October 22-23.

Developed in 1997 to mark the 52nd anniversary of the United Nations Association, this topic of this two-day Model United Nations Conference was "The Elimination of Anti-Personnel Landmines".

Students were required to prepare a one page position paper for their represented country and present it to other UN members. This experience allowed students the opportunity to explore the difficulties and complexities of international negotiation.

With its resounding success, the event was repeated last year and will be again this year. Realistic topics are chosen to mirror what the real UN actually deal with. The topic for this year's conference will be "Abuse of Human Rights - Intervention" specifically the "abuse of human rights versus the respect for a country's sovereignty. Does this dilemma, particularly in light of the recent Yugoslavia/Kosovo situation, necessitate a re-examination of the UN Charter regarding intervention and of the voting structure in the United Nations Security Council?"

This year, Centre Hastings High School will represent the countries of France and South Africa.

New owners for Eldorado store

by W. Brice McVicar

If you've been in the Eldorado store lately you may have noticed something new, that being the owners

Rick and Kathryn Juneau took over the business, now called the Eldorado Trading Post, on July 20th.

Kathryn grew up in Madoc but Rick is from Penetanguishene, north of Barrie.

With Kathryn, whose maiden name is Moorcroft, being from this area originally it brings some family history to the store and the locals know her family which helps with customer relationships, people don't feel they're dealing with strangers.

"We've been travelling down here for 20 years and I've always like this location," stated Mr. Juneau. "It's a busy highway and I saw a lot of potential with propane, diesel, one stop shopping." Juneau said he owned a store and a U-Haul business back in 1979 - 1983.

GIC Bantam Blues win home opener

The GIC Centre Bantam Blues hosted the Ennisnore Eagles in their first home game of the regular season.

The Blues wasted no time in letting Ennisnore know they were in charge, scoring four first period goals after Ennisnore took a 1 to 0 lead. Mike Lessard tied the game for the Blues assisted by Paul Babson. Todd Ackers followed with an unassisted marker to give the Blues the lead and then Gabe McInroy followed with a breakaway goal to stretch the lead to 3 to 1.

Brad Pollock, assisted by Todd Ackers and Paul Babson, scored on the powerplay to close out the first period scoring.

In the second period the Blues increased their lead to 5 to 1 when Mike Lessard found Stephen Jackett coming into the slot from the point. A high one timer found the top corner over the Ennisnore goaltender's glove.

Ennisnore scored late in the second but the Blues held the Eagles scoreless in the third for a 5 to 2 victory.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

The letter from Councilor Jones "Village Should Amalgamate with Township" in the Herald tells it like it is.

As Marmora Village and Marmora and Lake Township have always been closely integrated, their amalgamation should be a natural move.

If Regional government should replace the County system, the new and larger Marmora would have a more prominent position as one of the municipalities within the Region.

Stick to your guns Cathie, we need more forward-thinking people on Council.

Antique cars, trucks put on superb show

7th annual event draws 250 vehicles to Fair

Asphodel-Norwood - The seventh annual Norwood Fair Antique Car and Truck Show was a great success with a fantastic display of 250 vehicles taking pride of place at the fairgrounds Oct. 9.

It was a splendid day for all involved with hundreds of spectators visiting the show area to look at the entries and talk to their owners.

It was also a great day for the Action 2000 Committee who will receive $650 raised by the car club through a number of draws that were held during the course of the afternoon.

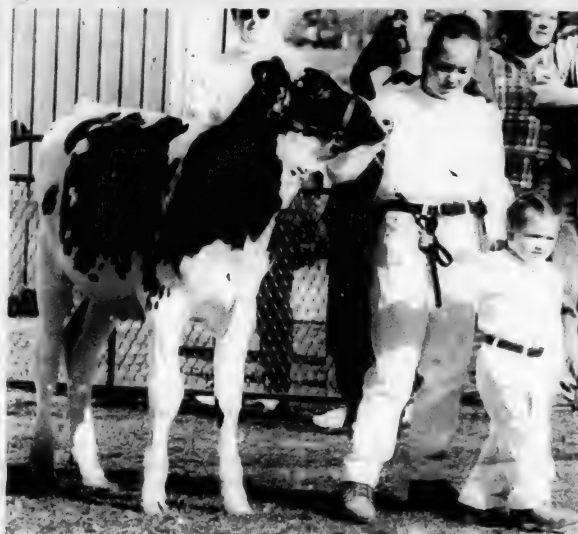

Earning the coveted President's Choice Award in the car category was Frank Harran of Peterborough for his 1955 Chev while Howard Moore of Campbellcroft was presented with the President's Choice Award in the truck division for his 1955 GMC.

The oldest running vehicle was a 1913 Ford Touring car owned by Ken Adams of Rosemeath.

Honourable mentions were given to Mike Otvos of Hastings with a 1937 Cord, Ralph Johnson of Bowmanville with a 1964 Chevelle, Bill Sherry of Norwood with a 1960 Pontiac, Lewis Isteau of Trenton with a 1955 Crown Vic, Charlotte Coveney of Peterborough with a 1966 Malibu, Glen McBride of Castleton with a 1966 Chevelle, Kevin Easton of Lindsay with a 1971 Cuda convertible and George Kennedy of Bowmanville with a 1940 Street Rod.

The Norwood Automotive and Collision Award to the Best Refurbished Car or Truck went to Don Bennett of Harrowsmith with a 1969 AMC Rebel SST.

Special thanks goes out to all the sponsors who helped to make this event such a success. Next year's show will be held Oct. 7, 2000.

Ohio State University's Department of Horticulture and Crop Science has made a study of growing giant pumpkins.

However, a spokesman, David A. Mangione, notes that before someone can master the art of growing a giant, they must first be familiar with the basic principles of growing an ordinary pumpkin.

The Ohio State University report provides a list of recommendations in order to be successful. It says always apply lime and fertilizers based on soil test recommendations. Providing adequate nutrients throughout the growing season will insure healthy, vigorous vines, not to mention large pumpkins.

Lots of science involved in growing giant pumpkins

Granular fertilizers should be applied as an application over the soil surface and incorporated into the soil four to six inches deep a few days ahead of setting out transplants. Giant pumpkin vines require approximately two pounds nitrogen, three pounds phosphorus and six pounds potash per 1,000 square feet of growing space. The addition of organic matter to the garden is important to establish good soil tilth.

An Early Start

Growing giant pumpkins requires an early start. Seeds should be sown individually and started indoors in 12-inch peat pots about the end of April. Plants are ready for transplanting when the first true leaf is fully expanded—usually 10 to 14 days after seeding.

Growing space in the garden is important. Each plant should be allowed approximately 2,500 square feet. Pumpkins prefer long hours of sunlight so avoid shaded areas.

Pumpkins are shallow rooted so must be watered slowly with at least one inch of water per week if rainfall is not adequate. More water may be required during hot, windy summer days. Water during morning or early afternoon hours so foliage dries by evening to prevent spread of leaf diseases.

Growers must control weeds. Windbreaks are required to protect young plants not fully rooted. The planting site of plants should be rotated each year to reduce the incidence of insect and disease pressure. With a regular spray program for insects and diseases, the success rate for producing a giant pumpkin can be significantly reduced.

Training Vines

Because of the size and fast growth of pumpkins, training vines and root pruning is important. This will prevent stem breakage and splitting. While the pumpkin is basketball size, curve the vine 80 to 90 degrees away from the fruit. About three feet out from the fruit, curve the vine back in the general direction it was headed. Clip roots three feet out on the vine. This will allow the vine to easily move upward as the pumpkin grows.

Pumpkins long in shape tend to push the vine forward, resulting in a kink. If this happens slide the pumpkin back about four to five inches. This is usually necessary when the pumpkin is about 300 pounds.

To protect the pumpkin from direct sunlight, construct a shade out of hurl or other lightweight material. This will prevent premature hardening of the outer skin and will allow the pumpkin to reach its full genetic potential in terms of physical size.

Pumpkins should be harvested when they have a deep, solid colour and the rind is hard. The vines are usually dying back at this time. Cover during a light frost and avoid leaving pumpkins out during a hard freeze to avoid softening.

Rebels' rally falls short in 6-4 loss to Picton Pirates

A strong third period comeback by the Campbellford Rebels came up a little short last Saturday night largely because of an acrobatic goaltender and a sharpshooting forward.

Goaltender Kevin McKenzie made many outstanding saves early in the game as the defending champion Picton Pirates built a commanding lead and then Wayne Brown took charge offensively to pin a 6-4 defeat on the Rebels.

Too many defensive let-downs in their own zone proved costly for the Rebels in the first period as the Pirates, looking like they have every intention of successfully defending the Empire Junior Hockey League crown, took advantage by jumping out front 4-1.

The snipers for the Pirates were Scott Colton, Mark Allen, Adam Walsh and Chris Roy. They worked effectively with Kevin Ayers, Nathan Vader, Josh Stott and Brown, who provided the playmaking.

The only reply for the Rebels came from Anthony Davies on a play with J. P. Goulah.

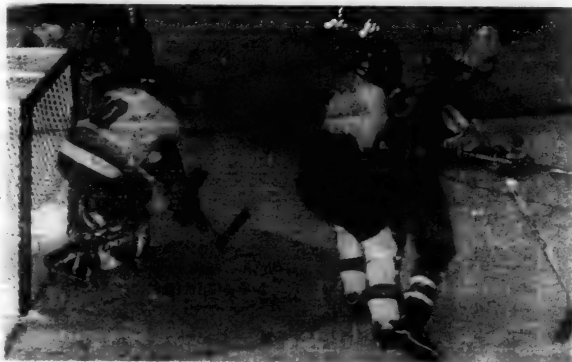

With Scott Metcalfe replacing Rick Albritton in the Rebels net at the 18:00 mark of the period, Rebels cut the score to 4-2 as Ryan Culhane connected on a three-way play with Kyle McMurray and Goulah in the second period.

Big Brown Goal

Brown's first of two goals, assisted by Jeff Anderson, restored the Picton lead heading into the final period.

In the third period, Rebels came out with a determined glint in their eyes and managed to trim the Picton lead to 5-4 on goals by captain Kevin Cork and Bryce Ellis. However, the Pirates hung tough and with the Rebels pressing for the equalizer Brown came through again to wrap up the victory.

Rebels now have a 500 record of two wins and two losses heading into their next scheduled game Friday, Oct. 15th when they visit the Georgian College Interlocking action. Then Rebels return home for a Saturday, Oct. 16th match-up against the North Frontenac Flyers.

Intense Junior Action—Rebels' goalie Rick Albritton, who had a busy outing as the Picton Pirates turned up the heat, watches closely for the puck. Ryan Binkley (6) of the Rebels makes sure Picton's Ryan Culhane (26) doesn't get into position for a possible rebound. Pirates came out smoking to take a 4-2 first period lead and finally settled for a 6-4 victory in junior C action. photo/Rolly Ethier.

FALL & WINTER HOME IMPROVEMENT

Fall maintenance for your home

New homeowners should select pleasant autumn days and conduct fall inspections on their new homes to ensure the winter ahead is spent in worry-free comfort.

A comprehensive check list of key areas can be organized before you begin the inspection inside and outside the home.

You can start from the bottom of the house, selecting a dry sunny day to air out the basement and crawl spaces. This prevents mold and mildew from accumulating.

Before the cold weather sets in and your heat is turned on, have the furnace and humidifier serviced by a qualified professional. Clean and eliminate all dust and dirt around the furnace, registers and condensing unit.

The chimneys and venting system should also be checked to ensure they are both in safe operating condition.

Where applicable, exhaust ventilation fans and heat recovery ventilators should be inspected and oiled according to manufacturer's instructions to guarantee efficient operation. In the kitchen, your range hood filter requires scrubbing with mild soapy water to prevent grease build-up. Regular cleaning of the range hood eliminates potential fire hazards.

Windows and doors should be examined for gaps of air infiltration. Homeowners can stop cold drafts from entering the house by applying good quality weatherstripping around doors and windows. Periodically check to see if the seal is snug. Lubricate weatherstripping with petroleum jelly to keep pliable.

During cold weather it may appear there are drafts around windows, although they are adequately glazed, fitted and weatherstripped. The draft felt may be due to vertical air movement over the face of the window as warm air rises and cool air descends.

Exterior doors are exposed to a variety of climates including inside humidity extremes. Some types of wooden doors experience shrinking and warping. Weatherstripping is often the best solution.

Storm doors are recommended where non-insulated doors are used to improve heat conservation and increase door life.

If the garden hose connection has a valve inside the house it has to be shut off and drained from the inside before winter to prevent freezing and bursting. For the same reason, a garden hose should never be connected during winter, ice forming in the hose will break either the hose or the hose faucet.

Outside the home, you should check exterior finishes for signs of moisture penetrating, wood siding, blistering and peeling paint. If left unresolved, can lead to water seeping into the house interior.

While inspecting the outside window finishes, check the caulking for signs of deterioration. Remove worn caulking and recaulk with a good quality compound to stop moisture and cold air from entering the home.

Eaves troughs, gutters and downspouts should be cleared of all leaves and debris. Surface particles from asphalt shingles washed down by rains often settle in gutters and should be removed. If drainage from the roof is hindered, a back up under the shingles can occur causing leakage into the house interior.

While on the roof, check vents, leaves and chimneys caps for birds nests or animal intruders. You may wish to hire a professional wild life service for animal removal jobs.

Keep window wells clear of leaves and debris which may interfere with the proper flow of water to the footing drainage system. Lot drainage systems are designed to direct water away from the house.

Walk around your property and examine the driveway and walkways for cracks. It is advisable to immediately repair any cracks you discover before water penetrates, freezes and expands into larger, more expensive problems.

Today's resilient flooring is definitely not your mother's linoleum

Virtually no one thinks that new home appliances, cars or computers are the same as they were ten, five or even two years ago. Yet when many homeowners contemplate their flooring choices, they think of resilient flooring as that plastic looking stuff that scuffed a lot when they were kids.

People even refer to resilient flooring as linoleum or just plain old vinyl. Resilient flooring is so named because it has a resilient core that makes it resistant to indentations and adds comfort underfoot. And, the stylish designs and colors now available resemble the flooring of your youth about as much as our LPs resemble your CDs.

Because homeowners make flooring purchases so infrequently they often have out-dated impressions about resilient flooring. The truth is that it's advanced tremendously during the last few years, so they need to reacquaint themselves with the new products, says Stuart Beattie, vice president of styling and design for a flooring manufacturer of resilient, laminate, and

In the last few years perhaps no flooring surface has evolved as much as resilient flooring. Today's wide range of pattern options feature rich, multi-layered colors, realistic texturing and authentic, high and low gloss levels.

How different is resilient flooring? Beattie swears that many people might walk right across it and not even recognize it. State-of-the-art technology enables the most cutting edge manufacturers to create resilient flooring that virtually looks like ceramic tile, stone, and even aged wood.

For instance, a process that closely replicates the textures of natural materials was developed. This means that a distressed wood design has the real texture of knots and characteristic deep graining. Stone patterns replicating slate, tumble stone and limestone have realistic nuances designed to give patterns weathered, multi-dimensional looks. The texturing is combined with a lower shine that's in keeping with consumers' preference for natural appearing surfaces. Also, colors are richly layered and exhibit tonal variations that mimic their organic counterparts.

Not only do resilient flooring designs have authentic texturing, each pattern has varying shine levels. This is a first for resilient flooring. Patterns now have shine where the natural material would shine, and a lower satin or matte finish where it's appropriate, like the grout lines. Ornate tile borders, insets and rustic markings have depth and appear three-dimensional. Stone designs have a warm patina as if beautifully weathered over the years. Mosaics look well just like mosaics.

We weren't content with our design limitations, and wanted to maximize our research and development capabilities," explains

Beattie. Homeowners want sophisticated flooring looks to enhance their homes. We were determined to give them an abundance of beautiful resilient flooring that could help them create the home of their dreams.

This new technology benefits homeowners in another way. They can now get expensive flooring that normally would be out of their price range. Exclusive custom designs were created replicating extra

FALL & WINTER HOME IMPROVEMENT

Keys to an energy efficient insulating system

Most homeowners know they can save money by turning off the lights, adjusting the thermostat or closing the refrigerator door. Many also know that adding insulation in their attics can help cut energy bills. But according to a recent homeowner survey, 65 percent of homeowners know their homes still aren't as energy efficient as they could be and don't know where to turn for help.

The solution—a well-designed insulating system that conserves energy, saves on heating and cooling costs year round and makes a home more comfortable. Through years of research, it was found that energy efficiency requires a system of products and installation techniques that deliver thermal performance, air infiltration protection and moisture control. The company applied its knowledge of energy efficiency to integrate other products that work with fiber glass and rigid foam insulation to create a high-performance insulating system.

Thermal performance

Traditionally, attic, floor and wall cavity insulation provides most of a home's thermal performance. Insulation works by slowing the transfer of heat, which is measured in R-values—the higher the R-value the better the insulation material's ability to resist the transfer of heat. Fiber glass insulation, best known for maintaining its R-value over time and its natural resistance to moisture and fire, makes it a very reliable product for insulating attics, flat ceilings, cathedral ceilings, exterior walls, floors, basements and crawlspaces.

Energy-saving experts recommend R-40 insulation in the attic and R-20 in the wall system of most homes. Most homes with 2x4 walls require a combination of fiber glass wall cavity insulation and insulating sheathing. For 2x6 exterior walls, an R-20 or R-22 high-density fiber glass insulation can be used to meet recommendations.

Double-pane windows and patio doors, designed with thermal performance in mind, help to reduce heat loss. An optional Low-E Argon glazing helps filter the sun's rays, helping keep a house cooler in the summer.

Air infiltration protection

Exterior wall seams and cracks are inevitable in even the most solid construction. There are a few ways to protect against air infiltration in the walls, adding to the overall energy efficiency of a home. One way is to install a housewrap, which can help keep cold winter drafts and warm summer winds from blowing in while allowing moisture to escape. Another effective method for achieving an air infiltration barrier is to use watertight construction tape to seal the insulating sheathing joints. Finally, a comprehensive caulk and seal job can significantly reduce air infiltration.

Regardless of which air infiltration method is used, all cracks, creases and openings in the floors and ceiling, walls, doors and windows should be caulked, weather-stripped or filled.

with a spray foam insulation. These areas include window and door frames, behind electrical boxes, air ducts, plumbing penetrations, and where siding or bricks and wood trim meet—all of which are fair game for air infiltration.

Additionally, a properly installed airtight fiber glass duct system can provide a substantial reduction in air infiltration when compared to metal ducts, if they run in unconditioned spaces.

Moisture control

Moisture build-up, which lessens the effectiveness of energy performance, can be controlled by using vapor retarders and proper ventilation. Most fiber glass insulation products are available with a kraft-faced vapor retarder, or the installer may choose a 6-mil polyethylene vapor retarder when using unfaced insulation in walls.

Attic rafter vents assist in the constant flow of fresh air from the soffit to a home's roof or ridge vents, resulting in a well-ventilated attic year-round that helps reduce moisture build-up.

The best time to install an effective insulating system is during new construction or remodeling projects. Many elements of the insulating system, like fiber glass insulation, windows, patio doors and attic rafter vents, can be installed by do-it-yourselfers in their current home, while other elements require help from a professional contractor.

Is your house ready for winter?

Before we know it, winter will be back again and households everywhere will kick their heating systems into high gear. Home owners, can save themselves money and possible grief later if they pay attention now to their furnace or boiler, advises the Canadian Oil Heat Association, which provides these suggestions to prepare your heating equipment for a winter workout.

Have a furnace physical—a quick service visit from the oil company or fuel provider will ensure that everything is operating at peak efficiency. In addition to a thorough cleaning to remove soot and dust build up, ensure that the fuel tank is carefully inspected, filter cleaned, burner tested and water heater checked. And remember to change the filter about once a month during the heating season.

Clean those ducts—in homes with forced air systems, ductwork should be cleaned regularly to maximize energy efficiency and reduce the amounts of microscopic particulates that are released into the home and breathed in.

Ensure radiators and vents are clear—do a quick sweep to make sure that boxes, furniture and other items haven't been placed on or near radiators or heat return air vents over the summer.

Install a CO detector—homes heated with natural gas are at risk of undetectable carbon monoxide poisoning. Install a CO detector or replace the batteries if you've already got one.

Evoke emotion with room color

The way we interpret color varies from person to person depending on individual experiences. However, as a general guideline, the color choice on your walls speak like this:

Red: symbolizes love and passion and also wets the appetite, red evokes hospitality and creativity.

Yellow: is lively and seductive and brings joy to the heart. Yellow is bracing and invigorating and is the first color in a room to catch the eye.

Blue: suggests serenity, evoking freshness and calm. Blue is the color of escape and encourages meditation, rest, and concentration.

Green: symbolizes nature with a healthy vitality and balance. Green is a restful color and suggests continuity between the inside and outside worlds.

Orange: is the warmest color in the spectrum, especially when hued toward red, brown or yellow. Orange shades are generally suited to smaller spaces.

Violet: is the color of dreams, combining the power of red and the depth of blue. Violet evokes opulence, royalty, and its lighter shades suggest romance and sensuality.

White: will enlarge a room and brighten its objects. White rooms express purity, simplicity, refinement and peace.

FALL & WINTER HOME IMPROVEMENT

The informed consumer

A window on energy savings

One of the biggest and most far-reaching lessons coming out of modern home design today is that reasonably insulated walls, if bolstered with high-performance triple-pane windows, can allow a two-story, gas-heated home to be free of all but the smallest amount of duct work—thus resulting in substantial capital savings and years of reduced energy costs, as well.

Recently completed computer analysis of thermographic data, plus well-documented, energy-use experiences from a number of 1980s-built Advanced Homes, all show that high-performance, envelope design overrides heating system requirements every time.

A big improvement in envelope design quite naturally comes through addressing its weakest link—windows.

Installing triple pane windows instead of conventional dual-pane units, especially performance enhanced tri-pane featuring low-o-glass, argon gas fill and structural foam, warm-edge spacers will increase a window's overall thermal resistance from R-2 to R-6, but more importantly raise inside-glass surface temperatures from 4C-6C.

That temperature difference, as small as it might seem, is quite capable of performing one important task, though—putting an end to a colder window's ability to instigate cool and uncomfortable room-drafts. And since this was the sole reason for running duct work out to a building's perimeter in the first place, then ergo no duct-work.

When twinned with a centralised furnace in the basement, a two-story building's overall duct-work requirement can be reduced by 75 percent—a saving of $1,400 in parts and labour on a 1,000 sq ft U.S. home.

A further 10 to 12 percent annual saving also accrues from the simple fact of less duct-leakage, plus another $70 a year in electricity savings.

Not a bad payoff for an investment of less than half of that in better windows.

What are the AFUE in BTUs?

Boost your home heat IQ! Have you ever wondered what exactly your technician is saying to you when servicing your oil heat equipment?

"It is very important that consumers understand their heating appliance," John Butt, President of the Canadian Oil Heat Association, says. "Our Association works to educate both the consumer and the oil heat companies so that everyone has as much information as possible."

Here is a list of common terms used in the heating industry, to help you better understand your oil system:

- AFUE: The Annual Fuel Utilization Efficiency of a heating appliance is an approximation of how much of your fuel is converted into space and/or water heating.
- BTU: A British Thermal Unit is the standard measurement to represent one unit of heat. One BTU is required to raise one pound of water one degree Fahrenheit.
- Degree Days: These represent the average temperature on a given day. The oil heating industry uses "degree days" to monitor your system's performance and to help schedule fuel oil deliveries to determine with accuracy when customers need a tank refill.

- Direct Venting: A process in which the combustion is vented directly to the outside through the wall, without the use of a chimney. Direct venting is ideal for converting electric heat homes, or for flexibility in locating the furnace during basement renovations.

- Flame Retention Head Burner: A higher-efficiency oil burner that produces a hotter flame and operates with a lower air flow, thus reducing heat loss up the chimney.
- Furnace: A heating unit that uses a forced air distribution system.

- Hydronics: Generating heat using a hot water boiler rather than a furnace. Hydronic systems do not blow warm air through ducts to registers, but rather distribute hot water to radiators, or even through tubes built into the floor.
- Retrofit: Replacement of one or more components of an existing system.

For more information about heating with oil, contact your local fuel oil dealer—look under "Fuels—Oil" in your Yellow Pages.

Insulation check list

An effective insulation system will reduce energy bills and the intrusion of outside noises while increasing comfort inside the home and improving its resale value.

There are several tips for ensuring an effective insulation project:

- Correctly install insulation. A professional contractor, committed to high quality insulation, can ensure that the benefits of insulation are maximized because it has been installed properly.
- Seal all outside air leaks. A spray foam insulation is particularly effective for filling in all cracks and crevices to create a complete air barrier.
- Ensure dry conditions. Moisture between walls can result in harmful moulds. Ensure proper ventilation and exhaust of moisture from kitchen and baths. Use of insulation provides an additional vapour barrier to prevent the growth of mould.
- Evaluate R-value as well as air leakage. R-values are one way that the energy efficiency of insulation is measured. Keep in mind that R-values do not measure random air leakage. An insulation dealer can conduct special tests to determine how airtight your home is after installing.

FALL & WINTER HOME IMPROVEMENT

For furnace owners, it's check up time again!

It may seem that winter just melted away, but before long it will be time to fire up the furnace again. That means a quick inspection of your oil heating system is in order, says the Canadian Oil Heat Association.

"We inspect our automobiles annually, yet many people don't consider having a furnace check up, although we probably depend on it more," says Association president John Butt. "Any home owner whose furnace has broken down on a -32 degree C night can tell you it's worth the effort of having a check up before the cold weather hits."

He says that the annual inspection is not an expensive venture, and is usually covered in an oil dealer's annual service plan that customers already pay for. Most inspection calls last less than 30 minutes, and involve a thorough cleaning of the unit. The burner, controls and hot water heater are tested, and the oil tank is carefully inspected.

These minor adjustments can mean increased efficiency and reduced costs.

Additionally, for maximum efficiency and safety, Mr. Butt advises consumers to check their furnace filter at least every six weeks, and to have the ductwork cleaned about every five years.

He also advises owners of older oil equipment to look into their options for upgrading. "Some people may not need to replace the entire furnace, but just upgrade the burner (at a cost of only about $800) to an efficient flame retention head model. This alone could reduce fuel bills by up to 15%."

For more information on heating with oil, contact your local fuel oil dealer. Look under "Oils-Fuel" in the Yellow Pages.

Why heat the great outdoors?

Draftproof your house

Air leakage sucks energy and comfort out of your house - and can cost you a lot of money. Up to 40 percent of the heat in older homes is lost to air leakage. The cost of cold, dry air leaking through cracks, gaps and holes in the exterior walls of your house can easily add up to $350 a year.

Get drafty homes in shape for winter

Before winter sets in, it pays to inspect your house carefully for leaks. A few low-cost steps can stop drafts and make your house a lot more comfortable and cheaper to heat. Be sure to choose the right product for the job, and follow these tips to make a real difference this winter.

Windows Traditional single-hung windows use V-strip and compression weatherstripping.

Hinged windows - such as casement windows - use sweep and compression weatherstripping.

Horizontal sliders require pile or brush weatherstripping.

Doors

Stop air leaks by adjusting or replacing worn weatherstripping around the sides and tops of doors.

Check the bottoms of doors. All exterior doors should have a threshold seal, a bottom seal or a door sweep to keep cold air out.

Other common draft sources

Common sources of drafts also include plumbing vents, holes for electrical wiring, gaps around exhaust fans and junction boxes, and gaps at the top of exterior walls. Use foam insulation and caulking to seal air leaks wherever you find them.

Today's resilient flooring

Resilient flooring's other beneficial features include being offered in a wide spectrum of design and color options, warmth and comfort underfoot, durability, stain resistance and easy maintenance. It's also a high performer in wet areas such as kitchens and baths, and makes a good remodeling choice since it can often be installed over old flooring surfaces.

New owners for Eldorado store

cans heading for Algonquin Park and wanting to check out the gold mine." Mrs. Juncos added.

Serving the public is one of the appeals of running the store according to Mr. Juncos. It's long hours but he noted the store will be kept open until 11 p.m. when the family moves in above the business.

The gas and the post office seems to be the biggest draw and Mr. Juncos said.

"We've just reorganized and have done a lot of work in here and the groceries are starting to move. It's to save them from going into Mador every day if they forget something."

Mr. and Mrs. Juncos said they both enjoy running the store and he has no regrets about leaving his last job to start on this new venture.

Mrs. Juncos said he was surprised to find they had lots of customers in both the early hours and the later hours (they're open 6:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and 6:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday).

"I did a survey the first month I was here asking them what they wanted and reliable hours was one of the most important things because some of them leave early and get home late," Mr. Juncos said.

Glad to be in business: The store in Eldorado now has new owners and a new name. The Eldorado Trading Post. Rick and Kathryn Juncos intend to make the store a great place for one-stop shopping. Photo by W. Brice McVicar

Tales from Shiloh Farm

by Chris Bertelsen

This week I just want to rant a little about a disturbing trend I see happening in Canadian society. A trend among many that we are inheriting from the United States. This is the abdication of personal responsibility and the unwillingness to apply or accept consequences for our actions.

I personally saw this happening more and more in our schools when a minority of students were allowed to continually hold the school to ransom with vandalism, disrespectful behaviour, indeed assault with either no consequences or slaps on the wrist. It became difficult to suspend students because parents would take the matter to the trustees who, for political reasons, would often back the parents. Some parents would put the blame of their child's cheating on the teacher by saying the teacher was not vigilant enough. In my last year I and a female colleague were assaulted by a student who refused to stop and remove his hat for the national anthem. When we both insisted on taking the matter to court we were first asked not to proceed by the administration, then in court we were asked to allow the judge to reduce the charge to a misdemeanor. We refused on the grounds that had the situation been reversed there would have been no such leniency; secondly, the young man had a history of violence; thirdly, it would send a message to the rest of the school that no one was going to get away with assaulting teachers without consequences. I blame some provisions of the Young Offenders Act for this attitude of the young. Many times I have heard my students exhort another to wreak revenge on someone by assault or slashing tires, etc. because "if you get caught nothing much happens to you". This same attitude has also contributed to lack of ability of parents to keep discipline in their homes. If a parent hits his child the consequences could be severe. On the other hand, if the youngster did the same to the parent, a slap on the wrist was all that usually happened.

The inspiration for this column came when my brother told the story of a friend who was buying a house but could not do so because the assets were frozen pending a lawsuit. Apparently, the homeowner had hired a crew to do a roofing job. At noon hour the owner bought a small case of beer and offered it to the men. Later on one of the men lost his balance and fell off the roof. The owner was sued claiming that he was responsible. Excuse me, but it seems to me only the worker would know how much one or two beers would affect his ability. And where was the responsibility of the contractor? Like having a rule about no drinking of any sorts on the job. If there was such a rule, is the adult who chose to break the rule not the one responsible for his own actions?

The second story concerns the pool owner who held a pool party at which alcohol was served. One of the guests got inebriated and insisted on climbing onto the roof to dive into the pool. The host tried to persuade him not to do it but the guest insisted and subsequently fell off the roof. The court found the owner guilty and assigned over a million dollars in damages because the owner had not physically restrained the guest. The next thing you know we will be sued for having too much chlorine in the pool since we should have known there was a possibility of some child being allergic to it.

Finally, my son was a bar tender for a number of years. He was responsible for the actions of any person who "drank too much" and left the bar and either did harm to himself or to others. My son said it was difficult because you did not know how many drinks the patron had had before entering and could not keep track of friends sneaking him drinks.

Teachers are responsible for the actions of a student who leaves their classroom and the school grounds and hurts himself even if he was told to go directly to the office.

When we as individuals are taught to shirk responsibility and flout the law and when society restricts the ability of our police and persons in authority to exact meaningful consequences we are doomed to become victims of crime and violence and we will have deserved it. I would urge parents and teachers to have their children and themselves to watch the Judge Judy show. Her aim is to have people assume personal responsibility for their actions. One of her favourite sayings is "You don't get paid for being dumb". I would also recommend her book to everyone, it's called "Don't Pee on My Leg and Tell Me It's Raining."

Lake in Tudor Township was made by Foster, seconded by Covert and carried.

Covert's motion to reply to the Honourable Warden D.K. Mumford that the Council of Tudor and Cashel foresee higher property tax rates with or without amalgamation and intend to keep the identity of this Municipality as long as possible was seconded by Donaldson and carried.

Covert seconded Donaldson's motion that council table the request from Madoc Township Roads Department for a turnaround at the end of the Township road in "The Island", lot two. Concession one of Tudor to the next meeting of council. Carried. Donaldson moved and Foster seconded to adjourn to meet on Tuesday, November 2nd at 7 p.m. or at the call of the reeve. Carried.

OPP celebrate 90th birthday

October 13th, 1999 marked the 90th anniversary of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Hastings County officers joined in the celebration with the official opening of the new detachment in Bancroft. Centre Hastings Detachment Commander Bryan Polard said, "You can't celebrate a day like today without thinking of the dedication and efforts of the officers that went before us."

"Hastings County is a good place to raise a family and we have to thank the three generations of police officers that have helped to keep it safe. Many of the senior officers will be sharing experiences of the past helping to prepare the younger officers for the future."

Should, however, a new truck be purchased. Delinc noted they should be looking at something heavy enough to carry a plow. He commented this would enable them to provide better service to the tax-payers and they could get their money's worth from the equipment.

From the council meeting held back in February, Councillors Mitz and Schulz were asked to provide a list indicating patron use for both the Madoc and Stirling Libraries. This list was provided and Mitz pointed out that 40% of the population of Centre Hastings utilizes the Madoc Public Library.

There are 981 library users in the municipality. Mitz pointed out, Centre Hastings pays $23,500 to the Madoc Public Library.

On the other hand Centre Hastings residents represent approximately 10% of the patrons at the Stirling-Rawdon Public Library, which Centre Hastings pays $7112 towards.

Another old issue that was brought to the table again was the new municipal logo. Though the municipality held a contest last year they did not receive enough entries from people living in Centre Hastings so the contest has been re-opened.

It was decided that the contest would be opened again to the general public as well as letters going to Loyalist College's art department and to Centre Hastings Secondary School.

"Perhaps," stated Councillor Mitz, "those two art departments can take it on as a full project."

my first load of clothes arrived. We're starting all over again.

Dibben pointed out E.R.D.O. is run by the Pentecostal Church but added, "The clothes I get aren't just from Pentecostals, they're from people of all denominations and they're from people that don't go to church at all. I'm not fussy about who I get them from and I'm not fussy who I give them to. If you need a shirt I'll give you a shirt and if you've got an extra one I'll take it from you."

Community Issue Committee looks at crime statistics

by W. Brice McVicar

Thieves and teenagers were two groups discussed in high volume at the October 19th Community Issues Committee meeting.

An issue that has been discussed before by the committee is the handicapped parking spot on the corner of Durham Street North and St. Lawrence Street, again this issue was brought to attention. The problem with the space is the downward grade on the street and, in the winter time, snow and ice.

OPP Sgt. Jeff Brooks stated the committee may have better success with having the parking spot relocated if they sent someone to approach council during a meeting. He also explained he would draft a letter up to send to Cled, Doug Parks.

Another issue that was looked at was a speeding problem on Wellington Street North. OPP Senior Constable Russ Alexander explained the problem seems to be with drivers coming off Highway 7 and driving faster than the 50 kilometre limit.

"So far," Brooks noted, "we've got the crosswalk and the safety sign on Wellington Street." He went on to explain the OPP would have to determine if there really is a speeding problem and he'd do that by putting an officer out there on radar to see if motorists are driving at excessive speed, if they find there is a problem it will be dealt with.

High school teacher Bill Mitchell had told the committee he had planned to send a group of students to the parking lot of the arcade on Elgin Street to pick up litter that had accumulated there but, as student representative Erin Danford informed the committee, when Mitchell went to the parking lot there was no litter. Brooks said he would talk with Centre Hastings-Roads Foreman Tom Piszczek about having some garbage cans placed in that area to reduce garbage lying around.

Brooks, providing OPP statistics for the areas of Madoc Village, Madoc Township and Huntingdon, pointed out there have been 24 break and enters in Huntingdon this year. All but two of these were residential. Twenty-four is a high number compared to nine in the village and 15 in Madoc Township.

"You can see by this there is a significant number of break and enters in Huntingdon," Brooks said, adding he couldn't compare the figures to last year because he didn't have the information in front of him.

Alexander told the committee that the Belleville Police Service had informed him they caught two groups of thieves this weekend. One group had been focusing on the Tyendinaga Territory while the other group were breaking into homes in Huntingdon, Thurlow and surrounding areas.

Brooks, who last fall talked of doing residential checks with homeowners and holding a workshop for homeowners on how not to be a victim, explained he would still like to tackle those projects but it is simply a factor of time but, he added, it will happen eventually.

Brooks went on to say that from his memory 24 break ins doesn't seem like a big increase from previous years.

"Twenty-four looks bad but when you look at it on a month to month basis it's not too bad. Then again, I guess one break-in is too much. The statistics support that there is a problem with break and enters," he stated.

Brooks explained it's easy for the public to help prevent themselves from becoming a victim by ensuring their doors are locked, closing the garage door and, if they are going to be away for an extended period of time, have neighbours collect their mail and newspapers.

Tony Braithwaite noted people should also be careful with what they put out for garbage because it's easy to see who has purchased new stereo equipment, computers and other items thieves love. It might be better to take boxes from such equipment to the dump so people don't see it in front of your house.

Something else which could be bad for homeowners is the possible disbanding of the Citizens on Patrol. Brooks explained the group, who only now has four members, have been discussing calling it quits.

Those involved are get-

Motor vehicle collision on Highway 62

Four sent to hospital: Centre Hastings OPP blame a sudden heavy downpour for the cause of this three car motor vehicle collision in Madoc Saturday, October 16th. A northbound Buick, driven by Krista Embury of Madoc, spun out in the rain, crossed the centre line and struck head on with a southbound Ford LTD driven by Robert Turner and his wife from Plainfield. After colliding with the Ford the Buick bounced back and was struck by a truck driven by Scott Chapman of Madoc. All four people were transferred to Belleville General Hospital with non-life threatening injuries. No charges were laid. Photo by W. Brice McVicar

Handgun was only a pellet gun

On October 19th Centre Hastings, OPP were called to investigate a report of two males outside a residence pointing a handgun in the morning in the village of Madoc. As result of this investigation it turned out the handgun was a pellet pistol being used for target practice on cans.

A search of the residence revealed insecure firearms (six rifles and shotguns) carelessly stored.

The OPP have charged a male adult, David John Griffin, age 20, presently of Madoc, with breach of probation. He will appear in court on November 25th, 1999.

The investigation is still ongoing and charges are pending against the owner of the residence in relation to the unsafe storage of the firearms.

Kiwanis Club inaugurates 51st president

by W. Brice McVicar

October 15th marked the beginning of a new year, the 51st to be exact, for the Madoc Kiwanis Club.

Approximately thirty people gathered for the dinner and ceremony that saw the Kiwanis Club swear in their 51st President, Ted Cassidy.

Outgoing President Don Smith greeted those in attendance and stated, "This evening is bringing a close to the 50th anniversary year of the Kiwanis Club of Madoc, next year's executive and members will be taking the club into it's 51st year and year 2000, a new millennium altogether. I would like to thank the executive for their help and cooperation and to Dan (Jones) for being secretary and doing a real good job. If I mentioned something I would get a phone call the next morning saying it was done." Smith also extended thanks to Jones' wife Karen for typing things out on the computer for the club as well as Kelly Stewart, treasurer, for doing a terrific job of his duties. He also thanked all the other members for all the work they have done during the past year.

"We did have a fairly busy year with rentals," Smith said, "we donated the hall 22 times to different organizations which shows it is an asset to the community. We donated what money we could afford and could have donated much more if we had it. There is an old saying, 'If it ain't broken, don't fix it' and there should be another one, 'If you don't have the money don't spend it'. It is very important, as a service club, that this building comes first in the past, the present and the future. Smith commented that when people ask for donations the most important person at that time is the treasurer and he should be asked if the funds are available. He stated it is his belief that some people think the Kiwanis Club is a millionaire's club when, in fact, "we barely broke even this year."

Smith pointed out a plaque directly behind him displaying the names of the past 50 presidents of the club that finished, respectively, with his own name. He then ripped a piece of paper off the wall and showed the new plaque beneath it which will display the names of the next 50 presidents as they are sworn in.

"I make a challenge to the new president and the

C.H.S.S. News

Over the past few weeks our school has been the host of four exchange students from Europe. Staying with family and Shirena Bonavia, a Benoit Champy from France. Benoit came to Canada during the summer and stayed on to experience the Canadian school culture. Laure Edelin is staying with Erica Brown and Chloe Sirovia is staying with Laura Howell. The fourth exchange student who stayed with CHSS was Valerie Romy. Valerie was from Switzerland. She was staying with Kate Hampel. Valerie was getting ready to leave our school last week and we will miss her terribly.

Last Friday was an amazing success. The video dance was awesome! Over 300 CHSS students attended the dance and a good time was had by all. Student council did an amazing job and provided give away chocolate bars at the end of the exciting evening. Thanks go out to all student council members as well as Mrs. Cook for doing an excellent job.

Our school is a very community-oriented school. Last Thursday the football game raised over $9000! All of the money that was raised will go towards the food banks in Tweed. Marmora and Madoc. Congratulations CHSS students!

Also, the Terry Fox run raised $2600 which is $400 over our goal! Way to go CHSS! And, on top of that, this year our school, along with Crime Stoppers, have come up with a plan to help the community and CHSS students. The idea is that the students at our school take leaves in our local communities for a price of $2 a bag. This new idea will come in handy for all those grade nine students who are required to put in 40 hours of community service before they graduate. Talk about a school for the community! Keep up the good work, CHSS!

members of the club to make sure this plaque is filled with president's names," Smith said.

Kiwanis Lieutenant Governor James Lawrence was called in to induct the new officers. Lawrence presented Smith a plaque for Immediate Past-President with an inscription that read: Presented to Don Smith for Outstanding Club Leadership.

Lawrence then began inducting the new executive and told the incoming Directors, Shawn Adams, Jim Chamberlain, Jim Denison, Don Keller and Phil Sernick. "Most of the club's business, as you know, is conducted by the board of directors and therefore you are taking on some significant responsibilities. You approve the budgets and invoice the paid bills and in general you manage the club."

John MacDonald was then called upon to be inducted as Secretary and Lawrence told him it is a very important job and is the "unsung hero" of the club. Lawrence pointed out some of the duties that MacDonald will be in charge of stated he was sure he'd do a fine job.

The newly inducted Treasurer was Kelly

Stewart, who held the job last year as well, and Stewart told Lawrence, "I always felt that I had a feel for money."

The next inducted members were Ron Ellis and Creighton Harrop. Ellis was inducted as the Second-Vice and Harrop as First-Vice.

Lawrence told Harrop he would be President next year and being First-Vice would give him the opportunity to plan and recognize the challenges that you'll be facing when you become President.

The last to be inducted, but certainly not least, was President and the honour of that title was bestowed to Ted Cassidy.

"As you know, you've been elected to the highest office that can be bestowed upon you by your Club. It is an office of high honour but comes with responsibility. The success of your club, Lawrence stated, "will be dependent on the leadership you exhibit."

Cassidy, after being inducted, stated, "We've got to pull things together here in a hurry. I appreciate everyone body coming. As far as the Kiwanis goes, Kiwanis has quite a tradition now, we have 50 years under our belt and we've also got a tradition of doing something to this hall every year and next year I swear that we're going to have air conditioning. I really appreciate you all coming. I know this year will be a good year. It's always a good time when we come to Kiwanis and I think that's why we're all here. We get out of it more than we put into it and it's very rare that you can say that about anything."

Local cow-calf producers meet the grade for quality beef

by Bruce Ward
Agricultural and Rural Representative

Local cow-calf producers are aware that they must provide a high quality product that will consistently provide the consumer with a good eating experience.

A good eating experience is based on the production and preparation of the right type of meat product that is tender, juicy and with a good flavour every time. According to a 1995 U.S. survey, 20 percent of beef producers do not pass consumer satisfaction in eating quality. To produce a quality product to meet consumer demand, the industry has determined it is looking for a carcass that is youthful, finishing in less than 15 months, will grade A1 or A2 and have a marbling score of double A (AA) or greater.

Last fall a group of cattle from 12 local farms started on a Purina Cattle Classic feedlot trial to determine if their cattle could meet the criteria to produce quality beef. In addition, producers wanted to know what cows in their herd were producing calves that would meet this criteria most efficiently and make them the most money.

Working in conjunction with the Beef Management Clubs from Peterborough, Victoria and Durham regions, 75 steers and 50 heifers were fed out at Joe Steed's feedlot in the Keene area on the Purina Cattle Classic feeding program. The cattle were fed in a typical feeding program consisting of Corn Silage, Barley/Dry Corn, and Supplement designed to finish the cattle to a double A grading standard. The consignors were charged for medications, feed at 53 cents/pound of gain for steers and 51 cents/pound for heifers and a daily yardage fee of 25 cents/head/day. The producers received an accurate assessment of how their cattle performed - Average Daily Gain, days on feed, feed cost, total cost per pound of gain, and each animal's carcass data and value.

Purina's Cattle Classic trial is designed as an information feedback program for commercial and purebred cattle producers to determine how well their cattle will perform in a commercial feedlot situation. To enhance the value of their cattle, cow-calf producers need information that accurately assesses their animal's performance. Producers whose cattle perform above average in daily gain, feed efficiency, carcass yield and grade can use the data to demand price premiums from feedlot operators and packers.

After a challenging start to the trial due to cattle health issues through December-January, the cattle performed quite well in the feedlot and in carcass grades. The steers had an ADG of 3.13 lbs./day and the heifers had an ADG of 2.89 lbs./day.

On a carcass basis all of the cattle except one graded Canada A1 or A2 and 94 percent of the cattle had a marbling score of double A or greater. The heifers finished out on an average of 13.8 months of age and the steers averaged 13.6 months of age. Based on this information, the cow-calf producers in this trial are producing the right type of carcasses to meet the consumer demand for quality meat.

The largest difference occurred in the efficiency of the cattle and the profit generated. The range in average daily gain was 2.12-3.95 lbs./day, the range in time to market was 12-20 months for the heifers and 12.3 - 16.2 months for the steers, and the range in profit for head was (-$79.74) to $149.73 for the heifers and (-$68.71) to $150.75 for the steers. If cow-calf producers are going to demand a premium for their calves they will have to select breeding stock from cows that produce calves that are going to perform above average in the feedlot and make money for the feedlot owners.

After reviewing the data collected, participating producers have to think about how this information affects their management decisions in the future. Hopefully, cow-calf producers can use this information to make decisions on breeds/breeding combinations as well as health and processing protocols as they market their cattle in the future. Cattle Classic data or information programs like it should form the basis for producers to sell a value-based calf in the future instead of selling the calf as an average commodity. In addition, cow-calf producers must produce calves that will produce carcasses that will provide a good eating experience for the consumer every time.

Hart's Riggs Women's Institute News

The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the hall on October 12th with our President, Marion Devolin, in charge. Minutes were read and approved. Secretary Karen Maguire read a thank-you from the Board of Directors of the Belleville General Hospital Foundation thanking us for our donation to the Dr. MacIntosh Cancer Foundation.

Gavle Ketcheson, convener-in-charge, introduced her guest Ben Robinson who spoke about Camp Trillium, a childhood cancer support centre.

This facility was founded in 1983 as the idea of John Maher, a bioethics student in placement at the paediatric oncology service in the Children's Hospital at Western Ontario. He studied the psychological state of the siblings of children with cancer. His study showed the need for these families to be given more support and suggested that a camp be started for children with cancer and also their siblings.

Money was needed for this to get started and it was through the generosity of the Independent Order of Oddfellows that this idea started to become a reality.

Ben, having experienced a rare form of cancer, attended these camps for five years. Now, Ben is free from cancer but may continue to attend if he so wishes, along with his brother.

Ben told us that Camp Trillium is his "Utopia!" A place where no one makes fun of anyone else's affliction and a great place to just have fun and forget your problems while taking part in your favourite activity, his being wind surfing.

In 1984 the first camp was established in London, Ontario. There were 20 campers and 18 staff. In the year 1997-1998 more than 2000 campers attended the various camps throughout the province.

A donation toward this project was then given to Camp Trillium.

Plans for the Warden's banquet were finalized.

Delegates were chosen for the Area Convention and a social committee established for the annual Hallows'en Party at the hall.

A social hour followed with Gavle and her committee serving lunch.

Keys left in cars invite thieves: OPP

Peterborough Cty.-The Kawartha OPP conducted spot checks of a different kind Saturday and were startled by what they found.

Parked vehicles were checked between noon and 2 pm to find out if the car had been running, the keys left in the ignition or children and pets had been left alone.

Of the 259 vehicles that were checked, police discovered 20 cars with keys left in the ignition, 73 with valuables in plain sight and 116 that were left unlocked.

As the colder weather approaches, police see an increase in vehicle thefts, says OPP Constable Jim Searle.

Const. Searle says this is due, in large part, to the fact that drivers leave their keys in the ignition.

"Drivers run in for a few minutes to pick up some items from a store and are amazed when they come out and find

Pair charged with theft from oak furniture store

The Central Region OPP Street Team, assisted by Northumberland OPP, have charged two men after executing a search warrant at a public storage facility in the Town of Brighton Friday, Oct. 15th.

A large amount of oak furniture that had been reported stolen from the Old Oak Tree Furniture Store on Highway 28 in Hope Township Sept. 29th was recovered. It has an estimated value of $10,000.

Two men were arrested at the scene. One resisted arrest and did some minor damage to a police cruiser.

Arrested was Richard MacDonald, 28, of Port Hope. He is charged with possession of stolen property. While at Brighton detachment, MacDonald jumped out of an upstairs window and escaped custody. He was apprehended a short time later, just north of Brighton, and was subsequently charged with escaping lawful custody.

Also charged is Warren McIvor, 44, of Cobourg. He is also charged with possession of stolen property, resisting arrest, willful damage and dangerous driving. Both will appear in Cobourg provincial court Oct. 25th for a bail hearing.

Rebels look sharper in sweeping past Georgina, Frontenac

With a lot of new players to integrate into the lineup this season, the Campbellford Rebels have struggled at times to develop the cohesion coaches Frank Toms and Doug Mathew are seeking.

Slowly, but surely, however, the Rebels are starting to gel. The coaches expressed their satisfaction with team progress after the Rebels skated to a sweep of last weekend's two starts.

Rebels travelled to Keswick Friday night (Oct. 15th) and dumped Georgina Ice-4-2, returning home Saturday night (Oct. 16th) to clip the North Frontenac Flyers 4-1.

With the young players showing more confidence and the veterans displaying more discipline, the Rebels improved their record in the Empire Junior C League to four wins and two losses in six starts.

In the interlocking match-up in Keswick, Rebels broke through first in the close-checking first period when Adam Brown connected with Nick Bertrand and Kevin Cork earning assists.

The second period saw the Rebels take a 3-1 lead. After Mike Farrell notched the equalizer for Georgina on a powerplay, Ryan Culhane and Bertrand came through with goals for the Rebels. Then in the third period, after Georgina trimmed the count on another powerplay goal by Justin Murray.

However, Georgina's hopes were dashed with 33 seconds remaining when defenceman Kevin Cork scored for the Rebels on an empty netter unassisted.

Big Shooting Edge

Rebels jumped into a 2-1 first period lead against North Frontenac in a fast-skating, crowd-pleasing battle and then added two more unanswered goals in the second period. Flyers were outshot 39-12 and only the reminding heroics of goalie Sean Brophy kept the Rebels from blowing away their opponents.

Brandon McLean

opened the scoring for the Rebels after finishing off a passing play with Cam Coward and Ryan Brock. After Kurtis Rinas beat Rebel goalie Rick Albritton by deflecting a pass, Rebels jumped ahead again when Josh Cork ripped in a rebound on a play with Kevin Cork and Brock.

In the second period Rebels broke loose for two more goals. Bryce Ellis scored from Kevin Cork at 17:20 and with 5:02 remaining Anthony Davies connected on a three-way pass with Kyle McMurray and Ryan Toms.

The third period was fast and hard-hitting but the checking dominated with neither team able to score.

Rebels will be on the road for their next two starts and won't be home until Saturday, Oct. 30th when they entertain the Central League's second-place Uxbridge Bruins in interlocking action. This weekend they take on the Jets in Amherstview Saturday night (Oct. 23rd) and will square off against the Napanee Raiders Sunday afternoon (Oct. 24th).

Woman killed while taking out blue box

Hamilton Township—An 85-year-old woman taking her blue recycling box out to the roadside was killed Monday, Oct. 18th when she was struck by a motor vehicle on Dale Road, County Road 74, in Hamilton Township.

Constance Holloway was pronounced dead at the scene, which was directly in front of her residence.

The driver of the vehicle, Lynne McCord, 40, of Baltimore, was travelling westbound on the road when the collision occurred. It was dark at the time of the incident and there was no street lighting in the area of the road. No charges were laid.

that their vehicle is gone, he said.

"This is also an easy time for would-be car thieves," he added.

Const. Searle says when this kind of theft occurs the chances of recovering the vehicle is "very small" and any items that were inside will probably never be seen again.

One can only imagine the horror of a parent who has left their vehicle running with a child in the backseat and returning to find the vehicle missing," Const. Searle said.

"There is no need to give the bad guys an easy target," he says.

ELZEVIR'S EDWIN'S BOY

Edwin...boy wonder

REVIEW

Edwin Another Spin Around the World

Where there is a will there is a way. After digesting Edwin's solo venture, "Another Spin Around the World," and all the attending media hoopla that has unfolded in the last month or so, I've come to the conclusion that kudos should be given Edwin for overcoming all obstacles.

What obstacles could this Sony-backed, pretty boy, "stokin' the star-making machinery" possibly have, you ask?

Well, for on he split from the platinum-selling, hardrock mining, I Mother Earth: polarizing their fan base into two camps, let alone embarking on a solo trip into uncharted waters.

Not dissing his ex-compatriots and stating "it was some of the best years of my life" (so far), has curtailed any tabloid-style trip down the messy divorce trail.

"It's about the love music and the gift it is. It doesn't have to be about slugging former band members. Everyone leaves a job sooner or later and that's what I did. Now! I've got more music to share."

Pigeon-holing him as the cuteboy that could sell mega units to the college girls, no matter what he put out, made him an easy mark for the critics. The interesting variety of songs, wrapped in excellent production and the fact that some of these songs are hard enough to propel the mosh pit, will keep the boys around and the critics can go take a hike.

I like the singles because that's what gets the crowd going. Especially "Shotgun" because it's upbeat and rocks pretty hard.

Sohc's got Sony's formidable marketing machinery hustling him, no street cred in that. But let's get real, what artist doesn't want to engage as many people as he can. Add to that the fact that his soft-spoken, down-to-earth, real open, honest nice guy character is coming through despite all the hustle, makes me wonder who's hustling whom?

Collaborating with a number of hired song writing technicians could be construed as a drawback and it does have the feel of commercial product but enlisting Ruben Huienza and other members of Glueleg on record and in the live band balances everything with some seriously experienced home-grown talent.

"It's great workin' with Ruben. We encourage each other. When I hooked up with Ruben we talked about working this disc for as long as it takes and then if he wants to do something else, that's his decision and I'm there for it."

If this is commercial hardrock and the programmers are going to use it, that's great because it's a welcome addition to the pabulum they are generally feeding us.

Yea! Edwin for having the balls to follow his own muse and not taking the easy route and keeping his alt-rock foot in the business door. He knows what HE wants and he's goin' for it.

Edwin is currently touring the country with the Tea Party.

Atom Hornets buzz foes

Asphodel-Norwood - Norwood's Archer Trucking atom Hornets are off to a flying start in their Y2K season racking up three wins and two shutouts in their first four starts.

The squad opened their campaign with a 4-1 tournament victory over Ops Township Friday night. The Hornets got a two-goal performance from Sawyer Gerow with single markers added by Terry Stockdale and Greg Kavish. Assists went to Jebidiah Huggins, Ronnie Hughes, Jordan Wrightly, Gerow and Darren Rioux.

The first-year atoms on the team got a quick introduction to bodychecking in their match against Mariposa Saturday. Norwood matched their opponent's skating skills but they were out-hit and lost the match 4-0.

Tyler Oliver earned the shutout in the Hornets' 5-0 win over Ops. Gerow paced the offence with the hat trick while Stockdale and Baron McDonald fired in single markers. Ronnie Hughes set up two goals with single helpers to Wrightly and Huggins.

The win gave Norwood a second place finish in the tourney and an excellent start to the 1999-2000 season. The tournament also gave the players a chance to get to know each other on and off the ice.

Oliver posted his second shutout in two days as he backstopped the club to a solid 3-0 win over St. Alphonsus in the first game of the Hastings and District schedule. The goalie received strong defensive help from his team-mates.

Leading the way was Wrightly with two goals. Gerow added a single while McDonald picked up the game's only assist.

Ten tips for choosing the right wood floor

You've decided you want the rich look of a wood floor to enhance your home. Now you want to make sure you get the right wood floor. Melanie Wood, vice president of design for a flooring manufacturer, recommends considering ten key points that will help you decide on the perfect wood tone and design to match your own home style.

1. Consider room size. If the room is small, select a lighter color to make the room appear larger. Conversely, rich, darker tones will absorb available light and create a warmer, more intimate environment in a large room.

2. Choose color to either coordinate or contrast with your current furnishings and cabinetry. For contrast, white cabinets look great with virtually any wood floor.

3. Think about the traffic your floor will see and choose a wood flooring with the appropriate protective finish. Companies offer no-wax ultraviolet-cured urethane finishes that are incredibly durable and resistant to stains, water spotting and wear-through. These finishes are also water-based and have a top coat that is 100% solvent-free. Select wood floors with a satin or semi-gloss finish for areas with lots of foot traffic, like family rooms, dens and kitchens. Reserve floors with high gloss for rooms with less activity such as a formal dining room or living room.

4. Note your light sources - including window sizes, and whether the rooms have incandescent or fluorescent light. These factors all contribute to the appearance of your floor. So try to view your wood selection in the same lighting that will be used in your home.

5. Pay attention to your design style. "It's important to choose your flooring to coordinate with the style you like," advises Wood. "Whether your home is traditional, country or contemporary, wood floors can make a style statement." For traditional or country decors, a random width plank (such as 3", 5" and 7") is a good choice. Single-width planks work well in a contemporary setting. Darker woods can have a more formal look, while lighter floors such as natural or white-washed tones lend themselves to more casual styles.

6. Weigh plank widths. A narrow width board (2-1/4 inch strip, or 3-inch plank) will visually expand a room. A wider board (5- or 7-inch plank) usually works better in a larger room. Wider planks are enjoying a resurgence in popularity and companies offer a range of options.

7. Look at edge styles. A plank with a bevelled edge highlights the natural wood texture and creates visual interest. A plank with a square edge provides a smooth, more traditional look across the entire room.

8. Play with design possibilities. Only your imagination limits your choices. Consider laying your flooring on the diagonal. Use a contrasting or complementary wood color to frame the room, or to create a dramatic focal point. A border or contrasting color can also be used as a tradition from an existing floor in one room to a new, non-matching floor in an adjoining room.

9. Contemplate the benefits of natural tones. Your floor should complement rather than dominate other design elements in the room. Wood's natural tone lets you use it as the neutral color to achieve the continuity and balance in your interior design.

10. Shop at retail locations specializing in flooring. This is no time to "wing it" at a huge home center. Specialty flooring retailers typically have the best and widest selection, giving you a comprehensive feel for all your options. Also, receiving professional attention and advice can facilitate the selection and purchasing process. Professional installation helps to ensure top-notch performance from your beautiful wood color.

FALL & WINTER HOME IMPROVEMENT

Preparation can prevent hassles of ice damming

Ice damming can be an annual nuisance and problem for some home owners.

Unlike unpredictable winter conditions, ice dams and their effects can be controlled through sound building practices and practical home owner maintenance.

Where ice dams form, leaks can be prevented by cleaning the snow off the roof, particularly at the eaves, and by knocking ice formations from the eaves and valley ends. Care should be taken not to damage roofing.

Ice damming occurs when ice forms on the lower edge of roofs and prevents water from draining off freely.

As the weather warms, the melted ice water can back up and leak under shingles because shingles do not seal up a roof. They depend on continuous drainage to work effectively.

Leakage caused by ice damming can lead to the deterioration of wood roof sheathing, ice accumulation in attics, wet insulation and stained ceilings, wall finishes and furnishings.

The Ontario Building Code's requirements are no guarantee against the effects of ice damming. Ice damming may indicate a defect in work or materials, and as such may be warrantable.

Unfortunately second-hand damage is not covered by warranty. Depending on how comprehensive the home owner's insurance policy is, it should pay for the repairs.

We encourage new home owners to do regular preventive maintenance in their home to safeguard their investment and protect their warranty. In the fall, before winter weather fully sets in, clean out your eavestroughs, gutters and downspouts, removing any leaves and debris that could clog drainage and cause excessive ice damming.

Home owners should also perform regular winter maintenance to prevent small problems from becoming larger, more expensive problems. For example, it is important to examine exterior finishes. If moisture has penetrated wood siding, you may see paint blistering and peeling which could lead to water seeping into the interior. Likewise, caulking that is worn and peeling can allow moisture and cold air into your home.

Your home has been provided with vents to control attic moisture and temperature levels. However, during certain snowstorms, snow may be blown into the attic creating extensive damage. Check your attic after unusually heavy snowstorms. Remove any snow before melting occurs. At no time should attic vents be obstructed or reduced in size.

Decorator's Diary

The most commonly asked paint questions

Colors for infants
Q: Decorating the nursery for our newborn has become confusing. Should the room have a calming or stimulating atmosphere, and what does that mean in terms of color?

A: Most experts suggest gentle, harmonious colors for infants: reserving the sharp, contrasting colors for preschool children. Give preference to colors that will make your baby feel safe and secure, but that doesn't necessarily mean traditional pink or powder blue. New color trends for example are fusing pink with orange, or blue with turquoise. You can, however, increase your baby's awareness by painting geometric forms like circles and squares on the ceiling, painted with contrasting shades to catch the little one's eye.

Flat finish paints can be washable

Q: Our entrance hallway is the focal point in our house. It is also a high-traffic area (no less than five people and two dogs) so we're looking for a durable but attractive wall coating to withstand the wear-and-tear. The last thing we want in this grand entrance is high-gloss paint. Any suggestions?

A: It's true that in the past, glossier surfaces were easier to keep clean, and flat, more beautiful finishes were harder to maintain. Innovations in latex paint, however, has now produced a gloss-free finish that is both washable as well as resistant to stains.

Council seeking lease for logs

by Laurie McVicar

The owner of logs being stored behind the Township Garage was once again discussed in council on Monday night.

In a letter to council, CAO Frank Mills explained that he had met with the owner who proposed leasing some of the property at a cost of $125 per year. Mills noted that he has $2 million insurance to cover the area until details of the lease are worked out. Mills was directed by council to pursue this matter after complaints were heard from Councillor Bonnie Danes several months ago. Danes felt it was not fair of council to charge some people for leasing township property and not others.

The owner was originally given the go ahead to use the land because of half road restrictions on the road. Councillor Danes brought to council's attention the fact that these restrictions were only in effect for a few weeks.

At the recent council meeting Councillor Danes brought forward another concern with where the logs were stored. Councillor Danes explained that they are located on both sides of a road used by children, walkers and cyclists.

Councillor Linda Bracken suggested that the logs be fenced in and was told by Reeve Lionel Bennett that it was unlikely they would be a problem. He pointed out that he had tried lifting a log but it would not budge. He stated that outside of a child climbing on top of the pile and falling off, he did not see a hazard in keeping them on the property.

Councillor Danes also expressed concerns over the financial losses the township has suffered by not charging the owner sooner and made a motion that leasing costs from the past six months be collected. The motion was not seconded and was lost.

Councillor Bracken proposed a new motion stating that instead of paying the money, the owner should be required to restore the road used frequently by heavy trucks. The motion was seconded by Councillor Danes.

Council sticks to their guns on road toll issue

by Wilma Bush

Marmora Village Council again turned down a request by the Marmora and District Lions Club to hold a road toll on Highway 7.

Lions President Brenda Brett attended the October 18 meeting and cited reasons she and the Club thought it should be approved.

She said the general consensus in the Village was that the two locations allotted by the council will cause more confusion than that traditionally used by the Club (in business section and at least four houses South on Highway 14).

Brett also said there is worry they will not have enough money to conduct the local Santa Claus Parade since there is less and less support being received from the local businesses.

Councillor Cathie Jones provided a survey of a number of municipalities which showed none of them allow road tolls on a major highway. She and Reeve Wilma Bush felt the situation is too dangerous and too much back-up is created with a toll on Highway 7.

Councillors Bob Kent and Morris McCaul voted in favour of the road toll.

Deputy Reeve Russ Mitchell was absent.

The Club was given permission to hold the road toll as originally agreed by Council from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. instead of 7:30-11:30 a.m.

Reporting on the local Community Policing Committee at the last Marmora Village Council meeting, Councillor Jones said the dance for teens at Halloween has been cancelled.

The regular Halloween party for children will be held in the town hall and money is being donated by those who do not wish to give out treats at their door. Any amount $5 and over results in a receipt.

A resolution was passed following a request by Councillor Jones that she be appointed as Council representative for the newly formed local Health Care Committee.

A resolution from the Municipality of Chatham-Kent was supported which urges "Provincial and Federal governments to ensure that the programs that are available to our farmers keep them competitive with other primary trading partners/competitors and furthermore that we insist that both levels of government pursue aggressively any hint of market collusion that would create unfair costs or decrease market prices to our farmers."

Brian and Suzanne Kerns were chosen as Animal Control Officers for the Village. Their phone number is 472-0826.

Total Security and Automation's bid to install an alarm system for the pumping station was accepted at a cost of $829.30 plus GST.

A price is forthcoming for installing a Chlorine Gas Detector for high levels of chlorine and a three phase motor voltage detection module.

The role of conservations now being the eyes and ears of fisheries control is causing concern to the Hastings County Planning Committee, reported Reeve Bush. A representative of Quinte Conservation has been invited to explain her situation at the next HCPC meeting.

Thomson Porte's detailed tender for correcting the problem at the Marmora Hydro substation was accepted. He is an employee of Tall Trees.

Reeve Bush also informed councillors that a search has begun for evaluators for Marmora Hydro.

Jewellery stolen from Stedmans

Kawartha OPP were called to the Stedman's store in Havelock on Tuesday, October 19 in response to a theft of various pendants, earrings and necklaces. The jewellery was noticed missing from the front counter and an investigation was initiated.

It is believed that a male subject entered the store and after asking the sales clerk to get him an item from the rear of the store, made off with the jewellery prior to the sales clerk returning to the front of the store. It is believed that the suspect was in the store on Monday, October 18 in the late afternoon.

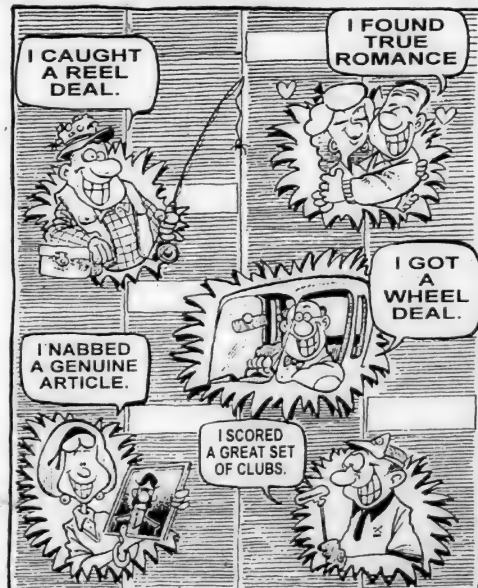

The male is described as six feet tall, 190 lbs, wearing jeans, a sweatshirt, a jean vest and clean shaven.

Police continue to investigate.

Should you have any information which may assist the police in solving this crime, please call Kawartha OPP at 1-705-742-0401 or Crimestoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS.

ting tired and we need to come up with some new strategy," Brooks said.

With Halloween coming up Tony Brathwaite asked if the OPP would be doing extra checks because, with Halloween being on Sunday, the businesses downtown will be closed.

Brooks said they plan to have extra bodies on Halloween night and the Citizens on Patrol will wait until after Halloween if they do decide to disband.

Another big problem recently has been the number of assaults in the village. Alexander noted a good number of these incidents have involved students from CHSS, where he is stationed as Community Policing Officer. He stated he wasn't sure exactly why the assaults have increased.

"I don't know why the assaults are up but the bottom line is that they are," stated Alexander. He pointed to a very vicious attack which took place behind the arcade on October 6th that involved four young women, all of whom have been charged.

It was discussed that the assaults reported have increased because Alexander is at the school and are being dealt with by him as opposed to the school dealing with the matter.

Alexander added that percentage wise CHSS is no better or worse than schools in Belleville when it comes to assaults. He praised Principal Christine Walker for being fairly strict with the students but on the same hand is always available for the students.

Even with assaults up Alexander said he has prevented some altercations by simply talking to students and explaining to them what would happen if they were to fight.

"The statistics support that there is a problem with break and enters."

-Sgt. Jeff Brooks

"If a kid understands what they're going to go through with court, lawyers and parents it seems to get the message through and I've done that about 12 or 15 times. We've done a lot of resolving and I'm seeing students coming up to me now and say something is going to happen," Alexander told the committee. He added it's difficult to guess how many fights he has prevented just by being in the school environment.

There are programs being planned at the school to deal with students who have been involved in assaults and other steps are being taken to teach students about the laws surrounding assaults.

With that fight occurring at the arcade in early October Alexander singled that particular place out because "a lot of problems seem to start there." He noted he's talked with the owner but that was before the last brutal assault.

The committee talked about the possibility of approaching council to see if there is some kind of by-law that could regulate the hours the arcade is open to prevent students from skipping classes and hanging out there when they should be in school.

"It's a problem in the town and it's where a lot of our criminal activity takes place," Alexander said.

Brooks noted it may be worthwhile to simply have the OPP do more foot patrols in that area and even do a walk-through at the arcade periodically.

Alexander noted they have done walk throughs before and have found no problems when they are in there.

The last issue discussed was a possible speeding problem on Slab Street in Huntingdon. Brooks noted council has received numerous complaints about speeders on this road and the OPP sent a car down to do a radar check and only six cars went

Brooks pointed out the limit on that road is 80 kilometres but it is a residential area so while there is a problem, technically it's not a speeding problem. It was mentioned that maybe council would consider lowering the speed limit to a more acceptable speed in a residential zone.

Quinte residents among best waste reducers in Ontario

Quinte residents are among the best recyclers and composters in Ontario. So says the Director of the Recycling Council of Ontario, commenting on the recent release of a report entitled "Municipal Three R's in Ontario: 1998 Fact Sheet".

The study showed that the amount of material diverted from landfill in Ontario rose 9 percent in 1998, compared to 1997 figures. The study also showed that residential paper recovery was up 11 percent and the average Ontario household recycled 6 percent more in 1998.

When questioned about the report, John Hanson, Director of the Recycling Council, commented that progressive municipalities, such as those in the Quinte area, are leading the way in terms of waste diverted from landfill. Since the Blue Box program was started about 10 years ago, participation in various waste reduction programs by Quinte residents has resulted in approximately 65 percent of the waste being diverted from landfill. This is the result of extraordinary participation rates in the Blue Box recycling and backyard composting as well as strong turnouts at hazardous waste collection events.

All Quinte area municipalities have adopted some form of "User Pay" program for garbage collection. While this move has not been without controversy, the "Bag Tag" system has helped to push diversion rates to their current province leading levels, by encouraging residents to recycle and compost.

The success of the Quinte area program is not restricted to the residential sector. Businesses and area schools also have excellent reputations for implementing comprehensive waste reduction programs.

When asked if they were pleased with the release of the recent report, staff of Quinte Waste Solutions, which operates the waste reduction programs, said they were very pleased that the efforts of Quinte residents have been recognized in this way. They are not, however, prepared to sit back and relax with diversion levels of 65 percent. There is still room to push this diversion level even higher - towards the target of 71 percent diversion and beyond.

In the months and years to come various new programs are being considered. The largest missing piece in the waste reduction puzzle is a centralized composting facility. This would have the capability to divert from landfill food waste from apartment dwellers, municipal leaf and yard waste and all types of organic waste from businesses and institutions. Quinte Waste Solutions staff are optimistic that a facility of this nature will become a reality in the year 2000.

Staff are also hopeful that some form of subsidy for the purchase of backyard composters will be reintroduced in the coming year so that residents can maintain and even increase the amount of food waste that is being diverted to composting in backyard bins.

Meeting at Ivanhoe looks at Deloro affect on Moira River

by W. Brice McVicar

How has the contamination at the Deloro mine site affected the Moira River System and, when that knowledge is gained, how should the public be informed?

Those were the two main questions looked at by local dignitaries from three area councils and Ministry of Environment employees at a meeting held in Ivanhoe on Tuesday.

Jim Ritter, Ministry of Environment, told those in attendance the meeting was a follow up to a meeting held earlier in the year with Moira Lake property owners. He noted property owners are concerned about the effects the contamination at Deloro is having downstream and the point of the meeting was to find "ways the Ministry can improve public consultation.

Wayne Herrick, Project Liaison Officer, presented a brief overhead presentation concerning the Moira River Study. Herrick noted there hasn't been an extensive study of the Moira River by a government organization since 1969, one that was done by Owen and Galloway. Herrick stated there have been studies done on the Moira River in that time frame by government organizations and private organizations but none of those have taken the whole ecosystem into play.

That, he said, created a lack of complete and up to date information and that was the Ministry's intention. He said there are concerned taxpayers who want to know what the contamination means to them and their family, these contaminants are arsenic, cobalt and copper.

These, Herrick pointed out, "are contaminants we need to know some good hard data on."

The study of the Moira River has two phases, the first being a study design completed in February of this year by Water Systems Analysts and the second phase being the actual study and report. The second phase consisted of project management by Golder Associates, sampling by the Ministry, Quince Conservation and Golder Associates which was done from April through to October of 1999, the report of that study and sampling is due in Spring of 2000.

Herrick then explained the three objectives of the study to assess contamination in the Moira River system and the potential effects on the environment to determine whether contaminants pose potential human health implications, and to predict how the environment will improve in response to remediation of the Deloro Mine Site.

It's used, Herrick added concerning the first objective, "to assess how the contaminants are affecting aquatic life." Studying the effects on the environment samplings have been done upstream of Deloro to Belleville. The study assesses water quality, sediment quality, fish and other water life.

To do a study like this, Herrick explained, you have to compare it to other areas that are similar in nature, symmetry and human use. With that in mind the results are being compared to findings in the Black and Skootamatta Rivers and findings in Moira and Stoco Lakes are compared to Round and Concession Lake.

That was your comparison applies to apples, Herrick said.

To study the aquatic environment, it's samples are taken from the water, bank sediment, sediment, rocks, etc. core sediments, fish muscle, a fish population survey and studies of whole fish.

look at the purity to determine how much contamination the fish are actually exposed to.

The second objective is to assess any human risk. Herrick explained the information they get comes from the first study and that data is looked at to see if there are any exceedances of health standards.

As part of that assessment the Ministry needed to know how the Moira River was being used so a questionnaire was sent out to 625 residents. A total of 231 surveys were returned which Herrick stated was an "excellent response."

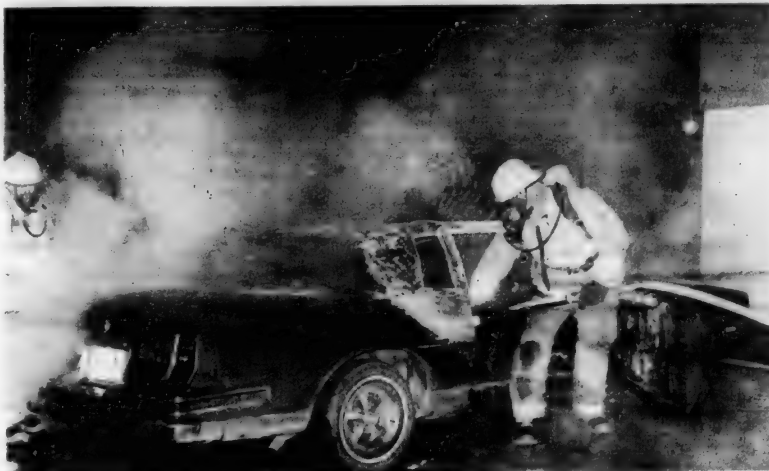

The third objective, predicting how the river system will improve with remediation of the Deloro mine site, is "complex work. We use computer models that have proved to be effective," Herrick explained.

He said it is hoped the money being spent to clean up the site will lower the arsenic that is being sent into the Moira River.

Stirling-Rawdon Councilor Dale Grant questioned if the study done back in 1969 showed that there was a problem?

Herrick explained that yes there were problems in 1969 and noted, "Let's just say the standards then weren't what they should have been."

He also noted that the levels of contaminants in the water have been reduced in the last three years because of the actions that have been taken in recent

Adult education correspondence centre open in Madoc

by W. Brice McVicar

A new door has opened in Madoc, not only a literal door but a doorway that leads to adults gaining their grade 12 diploma.

On Wednesday, October 27th the adult education correspondence centre officially opened in conjunction with the Adult Education Centre at 35 Durham Street, beside Home Hardware.

Instructor Marlene Johnston explained the centre offers two programs. Education for Employment and the Correspondence Centre.

"What we're doing here is we're running two different programs," Johnston stated. "Education for Employment is a joint venture between Hastings County and Ontario Works. It is a three month program whereby people who are referred by Ontario Works can work towards getting their grade twelve." Johnston explained she uses the word "toward" because some people may require more credits than she is able to give and they may not be able to finish it in three months, but it is still continuing.

That's where the correspondence centre comes into play. Those individuals who can not get all the necessary credits can then enter the correspondence program to get the credits they require.

"It's for anybody who needs grade twelve as well," Johnston said about the correspondence centre. "It's independent correspondence courses, any of the courses you would find at a local high school can be taken through correspondence."

The first class of the Employment for Education started on June 7th of this year. Johnston pointed out the reason the centre was opened here is because a lot of the people couldn't get transportation to Belleville which offers the same type of program.

"We service not only Madoc but Tweed, Mar-Mora, Deloro and Stirling. It's not just centred here in Madoc," Johnston added. As of right now the class for Education for Employment contains 15 people.

The correspondence centre is actually "just a drop in," she explained. "It's not a class, you just come in, pick up the books and go home and study on your own. You then bring back the assignments to me for marking and then pick them up when they're marked."

The class that began on June 7th was received very well by the students and they seemed to enjoy it according to Johnston. Even people in town have been happy to learn that there is a way for people to now get their grade twelve. And now, with the correspondence centre open, it'll be easier for everybody.

If you're on Ontario Works you can come into the Education for Employment program but if you're not on Ontario Works then the Correspondence Centre is your option," Johnston said. "The Correspondence Centre is open to anybody who wants to complete their grade twelve. If you're working full time and you do not have the time to run into a course this would be your option. If you are going to take the correspondence I need a copy of your old high school transcripts." That is needed so Johnston knows what the student has taken and what they have not so the student is not duplicating his or her work.

Johnston said she is seeing a mixed bag of people utilizing the service. A great deal of people are going back to get their certificate for themselves, just to know they finally have it. There are also some coming back because their work-place requires it.

The hours of the correspondence centre is currently Wednesday afternoon from three to six but, depending on the demand, that may change.

Centre Hastings Minor Hockey

by Sherri Carman

The Grizzlies are off to a great start this season! Ten hockey teams have been iced under the new banner and we look forward to what promises to be a fiercely competitive year for all our young hockey players.

In game one of the Midget Grizzlies season they hosted Tweed on Madoc ice. Tweed came out fighting in the first, scoring two goals on our net, but that was the end of their scoring opportunities. T.J. Tomlinson started the comeback early in second with an unassisted goal. At 2-4 left in the period Ryan Morison tied things up, with assists going to Mike Leaver and Adam Gray. Third period action was intense but nobody could get on the board and this one ended in a 2 to 2 tie.

The Pee-wee DD's took Tweed on Monday, October 18th. The lone goal in the first was scored by Logan Cassidy, unassisted. Late in the second period another unassisted goal was banged home by Josh Moore. The scoring ended there. Tweed never managed to get by our goalie, earning Jeff Preston a shut-out.

On Friday, October 22nd, on Marmora ice, the Pee-wee AE Grizzlies hosted the Brighton Braves in regular season play. Tyler Mumby got things going with a goal passed up by Tyler Blakely. The Braves answered back fairly quickly ending the first in a tie. It was early in the second when the Braves squeaked another one in. This game ended in a 2-1 loss for the Pee-wees. It was an exciting hockey game and goaltender Tyler Smith made some incredible saves for his teammates.

ploma there's a sense of 'I can't do anything, I'm useless' but once that diploma is in your hand there's a feeling of 'I can do anything and nothing is going to stop me'."

Johnston also noted the correspondence course isn't just for getting a grade twelve, people can also use it for upgrading.

Madoc Township Council minutes

Madoc Township held a regular council meeting on Monday, October 25th. All members of council were present as well as Road Superintendent Tom Bruce.

The meeting was called to order at 12 noon by Deputy Reeve Sager. Reeve Gerald Reid wasn't present at the time of the meeting's call to order but arrived at 2:20 to assume chair of the meeting.

There were no disclosures of conflict of interest. Burris moved that the October regular council minutes be adopted as circulated. Seconded by Robinson and carried.

The Road Superintendent attended council to advise of his activities during the month. Members of council discussed current maintenance requirements with the Road Superintendent. Mr. Boyd Walker, the Road Superintendent of Tudor and Cashel attended to discuss the concerns of the council with respect to a snowplow turnaround on Island Road.

Mr. Gerard Forestell attended council with respect to rezoning of a part of Lot 3, Concession 6 for Rural Residential use. He explained that the intent was not for any particular large scale development at this time but by rezoning the property at this time it would be more expedient for future development.

Mr. Maurice Goulah attended council regarding a neighbour keeping a horse on property which is within a residential area of the Township. He presented a

Youths charged with drugs

Acting on complaints received from citizens Quinte West Police, on October 22nd, set up surveillance at the upper level parking garage on Dundas Street West in Trenton. This parking garage is the property of the City of Quinte West.

As a result, four young offenders were arrested for a various number of drug related offenses. Charges included possession of a controlled substance, trafficking in a controlled substance, possession of a controlled substance for the purpose of trafficking and proceeds of crime.

All but one of the young offenders were released. The one young offender was held for a bail hearing. The other youths were given a court date for November 25.

Schools to pilot satellite delivered Internet

The Hastings and Prince Edward District School Board has been selected along with the Lewisport-Gander School District in Newfoundland to pilot an innovative networking technology aimed at improving Internet services to rural Canadian schools. The Canadian Network for Research, Industry and Education (CANARIE) is funding the $1 million project along with Telesat Canada, International Datacasting Corp. and Rebel.com. These three Ottawa-based companies will provide satellite dishes, data receivers, and caching servers to several pilot schools in each district.

The technical basis for the project involves the integration of satellite communication and data storage or "caching" technology. A central server in Ottawa will automatically identify popular educational web sites accessed by students at individual schools and will transmit the information via satellite right across the country.

Satellite receivers at each school will decode the signal and save a local copy of the information in a specialized storage computer called a "caching server". Classroom computers performing Internet searches will be configured to check the local caching server first, before issuing a request to the often congested Internet. It is expected that up to 40 percent of the Internet requests could be satisfied locally, providing a much more rapid response and a more productive and user-friendly learning environment for students.

Twelve area schools are involved in the project which will run until August 2000. Participants will monitor the system to test satellite transmission rates, adequacy of cache sizes, and most importantly, improvement of Internet access speeds for students and teachers. Ultimately, the goal is to optimize the architecture of the system to make it appealing to schools right across the country.

The junior C road gets bumpy for Rebs

Amherstview—During the course of any hockey season teams often discover a smooth paved road suddenly turns bumpy when you least expect it.

After a sweep of their two previous weekend starts and looking like they had turned the corner, the Campbellford Rebels ran into a twin mugging last weekend when the Amherstview Jets and Napanee Raiders turned the tables on them.

In a rare Saturday night road game, Rebels invaded Amherstview and left with a 1-2 defeat after holding an early 2-1 lead.

Jets opened the scoring at the 13:44 mark in the first period on a goal by Kris Croomes assisted by Chris Cox. Adam Brown got the equalizer after being set up in front of the net by Jamie McOmby. Three minutes later McOmby scored to put the Rebs ahead as he combined with Brown and Decon Watterson.

The scoring was confined to just a single goal in the second period with Jason Withers tipping in a goalmouth pass by Darryl Emers to pull the Jets even.

With only 5:15 minutes remaining in the final period, Withers was back to score his second of the night on a powerplay opportunity to stake the Jets to a victory. The result redeemed an earlier loss to the Campbellford skaters.

The game was hard-hitting and filled with end-to-end action as each team generated 33 shots on goal and took only 13 minutes in penalties. The game required only two hours and 10 minutes to play.

Another setback

Rebels travelled to Picton for a Sunday afternoon contest but the slump continued as they took it on the chin 5-2.

In a penalty-strewn battle, Raiders took advantage of the manpower edge to score two second period

Stay Alert. ..Stay Safe for a happy Halloween

It's that time of year again when parents give their kids permission to be "little monsters" for one night.

After Christmas, Halloween is probably the next most exciting time of year for children.

"Stay Alert... Stay Safe", an organization sponsored by Canadian Tire and the Child Protection Foundation, asks trick-or-treaters to make sure parents read their safety tips from Bert and Gert to promote a happy Halloween.

Founded in 1987, "Stay Alert... Stay Safe" is Canada's leading street proofing program. Materials are distributed to schools, communities and police across Canada.

These helpful tips are passed along to keep everyone safe Sunday night on Halloween.

Wear makeup instead of a mask so you can see properly.

Go trick-or-treating with family or friends. Let people know your route.

Have an adult check the treats you collect before you eat them.

If someone invited you alone into a house, say "No thanks!"

Only go to homes with their lights on.

Walk, don't run, and look all ways before crossing the street. Trick-or-treat on one side of the street and then the other.

Use a flashlight to help you see in the dark.

Sr. Black Hornets launch tyke campaign

Asphodel-Newwood - Norwood's Centennial Pharmacy/Birdsall Beach senior Black Hornet tyke squad opened their millennium campaign Oct. 19 with a road game against the Black Wolves from Keene.

The high-flying tykes showed plenty of offence and good defensive plays to come out with a 7-7 tie in their inaugural match.

Michael Loucks - one of the crafty veterans on the team, led the way with four goals and one assist. Steven Walsh, another fourth year general, showed his leadership skills by chipping in two goals as well as strong back-checking. Matthew Zenner, in his third year with the Hornets, added a solo marker. Matthew Nelson showed lots of determination as he stone-walled the Wolves on several break-away attempts to keep his team close.

Rounding out the Black Hornet team of 1999-2000 are Blake Anderson, Kyle Anderson Carter, Chase Baptie, Rachel Bolton, Dylan Brightman, Joshua Bucholtz, Shane Carthew, Brandon Kingston and Justin McWhinnie.

The Black Hornets second tilt of the season came against the Campbellford Colts. This proved to be a tight-checking affair with no scoring occurring until the third period when Steven Walsh took a pass from rookie Justin McWhinnie. Walsh made no mistake as he buried the biscuit with a low wrist to the corner of the net.

McWhinnie, in his first hockey season, is playing like a seasoned veteran with strong efforts in his first two games.

Campbellford's persistent checking finally paid off as they tied the contest with 5:48 to go in the game. The Colts notched two more late goals to seal a 3-1 victory.

The defensive duo of Blake Anderson and Shane Carthew provided goaltender Matthew Nelson with lots of help against the persistent Colts. Nelson kept the Hornets in this one as he stopped the Colts on several close attempts.

Michael Loucks and Matthew Zenner played strong two-way games. Newcomers Joshua Bucholtz, Dylan Brightman, Brand Kingston, Chase Baptie and Rachel Bolton are working hard on their positional play and will be forces for the Hornets in future games.

Immunization program under way

Port Hope—The influenza season has arrived and staff of the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit are working hard. Their mission is to ensure staff, volunteers and residents of long-term care facilities and homes for the aged are immunized against the devastating disease.

In a presentation at the Oct. 19th Board of Health meeting, Communicable Disease Control nurse Shirlet Mitchell provided board members with an overview of the Health Unit's mission. It is to ensure residents of these facilities are protected through the immunization of staff, volunteers and visiting physicians.

"Many of the residents are very vulnerable to disease and run the risk of becoming very ill from a virus carried into the facility by younger staff and volunteers," said Mitchell. "Staff are being immunized, not just for their own protection, but for the protection

Helping families finance dental care

Family Dental Centre launches new, easy payment plans

Frankford - The Family Dental Centre is pleased to announce the new Family Dental Centre Card, offering patients their choice of interest-free, equal payment plans or no interest, no payment plans.

"At The Family Dental Centre, our patients appreciate any effort we make to provide dental care that's as stress-free as possible," said Dr. Steve Mascarin. "By providing flexible payment plans for our patients, we are endeavouring to do just that."

With six payment plans to choose from, approved patients can select the approach that best suits their needs. These include: the Regular Purchase Payment Plan, the 6-Month Equal Payment Plan, the 12-Month Equal Payment Plan, the 3-Month No Interest, No Payment Plan, the 6-Month No Interest, No Payment Plan and the 12-Month No Interest, No Payment Plan.

"Many of our patients are self-employed or on a fixed income," added Dr. John Marinovich of The Family Dental Centre. "Our experience shows that many people do not have a dental plan and need help financing their treatment needs. Others may have a dental plan, but the treatment they need isn't covered by their insurance company. Our goal is to make quality dental care affordable to all families throughout the Quinte Region."

To learn more about the new Family Dental Centre Card or to request an interview, call Judy Donnan of The Family Dental Centre at (613) 398-8888.

power play goals that settled the issue.

It was deadlocked at the first intermission with Martin Charbonneau clicking for the Raiders and defenceman Kevin Cork replying for the Rebels. Cork intercepted a pass at the blue line and put a point shot past the Raider goaltender.

In the second period, Jamie Hinchey scored at 16:43 from Craig Meridith and then Jessie Wansborough made it 3-1 with 1:53 left, teaming up with Steve Smith as the Raiders took flight. The score stayed that way until Todd Demerhac tied the game with two more goals, one at 6:39 and again with 37 seconds left.

Rebels added a second goal with a mere 14 seconds before the final buzzer as Jack McLaren connected.

Ads designed to curb smoking by teen-agers

Your teenage daughter's latest Hollywood heartthrob has a cigarette dangling from his fingers and your son's favourite rock singer takes another drag...they see this as "cool" but the Canadian Health Network hears alarm bells.

Watch their reactions to Health Canada's series of hand-hitting television advertisements, aimed at taking the glamour out of smoking. One of these features a woman smoking a cigarette from a surgical incision in her throat caused by cancer. Hardly the stuff of which glamour is made. Another shows a young girl talking about her mother who died from smoking-related cancer.

Why such an approach? Take a look behind your local middle school or high school; outside the corner store or at those groups of young people hanging out in a huddle at the park. Chances are that at least one of them is smoking, and odds are increasing that they started the habit at a fairly young age. Of the kids between 15 and 19 who smoke, most say they started before the age of 14.

Most young people buy their cigarettes at the corner store, but those in the 10 to 14 year old age group will get them through another person, an older sibling, older friend and quite often from their parents.

In Ontario, 28 per cent of students in grades 7 to 13 were smokers in 1997. Why? They think it's cool, they are curious, and most importantly for them, it's what their friends are doing.

The majority of young people have seen enough tobacco advertising that they can identify cigarette brands from pictures of packages without brand names. Tobacco promotion aims to proclaim the benefits of using the product as well as to promote positive lifestyle images associated with the brand.

Watch your kids' reactions to the ads, and check out Health Canada website at <http://www.canadian-healthnetwork.ca/tobacco>.

Patricia Heffernan wins 4-H challenge trophy

Also receives County's top dairy showman award

Peterborough City

Patricia Heffernan of Ashphodel-Norwood has received two of Peterborough County's top 4-H awards.

Patricia was presented with the Peterborough Kiwanis Challenge Trophy during the County's annual 4-H recognition and awards night held at Trinity United Church in Peterborough last Friday night.

Patricia received the Challenge Trophy for her efforts in competitive 4-H clubs.

She was also presented with the Peterborough County Dairy Producers trophy as the top dairy showman in 1999.

More than 215 participants (members and leaders) were involved in Peterborough 4-H programs in 1999 and 10 4-H clubs were at Trinity United to be honoured.

Every member in 4-H is a winner in their own right learning lasting leadership skills and knowledge through a variety of projects that ranged from livestock, crops and machinery to drama, cake-decorating and camping.

The recognition and awards night is co-sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Peterborough, the Townships of Peterborough County and the Peterborough 4-H Association.

Also among the major award winners were Cheryl Webster who received the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce Award as the most outstanding 4-H member in the County. The outstanding junior 4-H member was Amanda Lane of Peterborough.

Special awards for different projects were also given out.

Jason Vowles of Bailieboro won the Holstein Club True Type Model Cow as the top 4-H Dairy Club member. Thom Hickey of Ennismore took home the Maple Lane Award as the top 4-H Beef Club member and Cody Oliver of Peterborough was awarded the Agrico Canada Ltd. Barometer as the top 4-H Field Crops member.

Other showmanship awards included Greg Cornish of Indian River who received the Peterborough County Cattleman's Trophy as top Beef Showman. Ben McLeod received the Peterborough County Sheep Producer's Showblanket as top Sheep Showman. Matt Walker of Lakefield was awarded the Peterborough County Pork Producers Trophy as the top Swine Showman for the Peterborough Swine Club.

The County Pork Producers also sponsor an award for the showman with the champion swine project which this year was presented to Leanne Walker of Lakefield. The top swine showman for the Peterborough South 4-H Swine Club was Jeff McLeod who received the W.G. Thompson and Sons Trophy.

The Peterborough County 4-H program welcomes young people between the ages of ten and 21 as of Jan. 1 to participate as a 4-H member. Adult volunteers are always welcome to share their skills and interests with the enthusiastic members of the 4-H program.

Legionnaires hear legend of the Halli

by Laurie McVicar

Havelock - Members of the Havelock-Belmont-Methuen Legion were given the opportunity at their meeting last Wednesday to support a CFB Trenton restoration project that would see the rebuilding of the only 'Halifax NA337 fighter plane left in the world.'

Paul Demorest, a member of the project and guest speaker at the meeting, described the history of the doomed craft which was shot down over Lake Mjosa, Norway in 1945 and recovered on August 15, 1995.

'The Halli, as it is known to the veterans who flew her, represents a very important place in the history of Canadian aviation and in the history of the Second World War,' stated a flyer featuring the background of the plane. 'Halli NA337 is a part of over 37,000 missions flown by Canadians of which we flew 29,000 of them. Of the 50,000 Canadians in the RCAF, 10,000 gave their lives in Bomber Command' including the seven man crew of the Halli.

As a way to fund the project, three limited types of memorial plaques are being sold by Ray and Jim's Signs and Trophies in Belleville displaying the name of each crew member, information about the War Bird and an actual mounted piece of the Halifax NA337. Demorest urged the Legion members to not only purchase the plaques for themselves but for future youth so that they may have a link with the veterans.

Once the project is complete, the Halli will be displayed at the Royal Canadian Air Force Museum in Trenton.

Things look super for Monday night

Hastings - The Monday Night Norwood bowling team and the pins had an exciting evening Oct. 25. It is a lot of fun and some nights some of the bowlers have a hard time knocking the pins down and the following week they are bowling stars. That is what bowling is all about -- sharing the good with the bad.

The Westwood bowling crew want to join the Norwood family to make it a bigger, super bowling team. We should know more on Nov. 1. I'll keep you up-to-date with the final line-up of how many teams we will have.

Results from action between the gutters at Dodd's Lanes in Hastings Oct. 25 included some super bowling by the following stars: High single performances went to Pat Wilford with his 258, 227, 189; Fran Heffernan with 252; 154, Art Sels with 225, 191, 165, Adam Barrons with 201, 177, 165; Bernie Heffernan with 193, 162, 151; Ellwood Sweeting with 191, 140; Harry Wilford with 188; Pat Thiele with 173, 172; Isabella Sels with 165; Lisa Bump with 168; Helen Wilford with 165; Ron Zenner with 158, 153; Laurie Zenner with 158, 142; Peter Young with 158; Ann Cutmore with 157, 156 and Muriel Stewart with her 147.

Parking control to be enforced at Fun Park site

By Rolly Ethier

Municipal Council is basically in agreement with a request from the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority to establish parking controls south of the Crowe River Bridge on Crowe River Road.

At a recent meeting of the Fire/Building/Property Committee meeting, however, council members expressed a desire to have parking controls lifted in the off-season.

"What will be done for parking when the camp is closed and people merely park their cars and go for a walk?" asked Reeve Bill Petherick.

Chief Building Official Brett Forestell said that the Parking By-law has already been approved and that the seasonal no-parking intention is self-evident.

In Forestell's memo, he pointed out that when staff was preparing the By-law last year it included no parking on both sides of the road south from the bridge to the entrance gates of the Fun Park and the Campground. A recent contact from the Ministry of the Attorney General indicates that this By-law will be sent to the Chief Justice of Ontario this fall. Once approved parking tickets can be written.

Forestell says signs can be installed at any time and once the set fines are approved, the Municipality could appoint Conservation staff as parking officers. He said it was not intended to hand out tickets in the off-season after the park closed.

Efforts to control parking near the Family Fun Park was initiated following a letter to the Municipality from Barrett Jones, Park Manager, because of vehicles parking on the roadside to avoid paying admission at the gate.

Jones pointed out that the roadway parking not only affected the appeal of the Crowe Bridge Family Fun Park because of clutter and garbage being left behind, but it also posed as a safety problem for pedestrians crossing the road.

The Crowe Bridge Family Fun Park, formerly known as the Crowe Bridge Conservation Area, is owned and operated by the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority.

Rock 'n Rail seeking support for millennium play

by Shirley Patterson

The Rock 'n Rail sponsored bus trip to Orillia's Opera House to enjoy the classic "The Nutcracker," a turkey luncheon with all the trimmings at the Sun-At-Luna, a visit to the Mariposa Market and a Christmas Light Tour. Scheduled with a cut off date of November 30th was added with a cut off date of October 25. It has now been extended to accommodate late comers. The proceeds of each fund raising event will benefit our Millennium 2000 Project. The executive of the Rock 'n Rail Community Association met recently to discuss how we could increase the interest shown in maintaining an active existence in Haylock-Belmont-Methuen Township community. We had hoped to find the needed support to continue the format for our theatre production in the summer of 2000. In order to accomplish the task of writing, directing, advertising etc that will be the basics of our theatre project we must raise several thousand dollars to make it happen. A suggestion from some would be a charge to evening meetings. It's true that some prospective volunteers may be busy during day hours, but might be available to help or at least attend an evening meeting. So, with that in mind, we have scheduled an evening meeting at the Senior Citizens Building for Tuesday, November 16 at 7 p.m.

Let me ask this question of you: do you agree there is a need to rekindle the drive for peace by educating the younger generations of the sacrifices and struggles that our ancestors endured to ensure that we can live peacefully in this ever changing world?

Well, I do! I believe that an effort must be made to push for an end to violence. And, that push must begin at home, in our schools, in our churches, every day of our lives, if we hope to have peace in the next millennium. It is my dream that through this play, we will make a contribution toward being an "instrument of peace" by showing in a theatre production that consists of anecdotes gathered from folks of our own community what we must know of past struggles, the sadness, the loneliness, the heartache, the day to day care of families without the security of their fathers. Much can be learned from these stories in order to avoid them happening in the future.

Fundraiser to aid in bursary project

With an aim to supporting the Anne Stafford "Light Up The Future Bursary," the Campbellford and District Association for Community Living held a barbecue Thursday in Campbellford.

Community Living organizers cooked hamburgers and sausages at the Campbellford Office Supplies and More Store to raise funds. The bursary project is designed to honour a deserving person at the Community Living's annual conference. This award supports adults with an intellectual disability in their pursuit of post-secondary education or training across Ontario.

Last year a Campbellford candidate, Adam Miller, was one of the winners.

In addition, October has been declared Community Living Month in Campbellford and other communities all over Canada.

LARGE SENIOR POPULATIONS UNDERLINE NEED TO LAUNCH NEW TRANSPORTATION PLAN

Report presented to Council

Campbellford features one of the highest percentage of senior citizen populations in Northumberland County.

That was one of the interesting facts revealed when the County's Community Transportation Plan was presented at a recent meeting of the Municipal Planning Committee. Councillor Trish Baird, a member of the Steering Committee, introduced the report to her colleagues.

Brighton tops the list with the highest percentage - 22.46 compared to 21.50 for Campbellford/Seymour. Others high on the list of heavily senior populated communities are the Village of Hastings at 20.17 percent and the Township of Percy at 20.12 percent.

The report was prepared by Schmid Communications of Mississauga.

These figures are becoming increasingly important, says the report, "in affecting travel patterns and needs, especially with respect to services related to health care needs and to recreational pursuits."

Demographic comparisons with the provincial and county populations differ dramatically with local regions. Ontario shows a percentage of 34.01 for students and only 11.25 for seniors while the County has 21.15 percent students and 16.08 percent seniors.

The figures presented in the report make it clear that the student population in Northumberland is lower by almost 13 per cent than that of the provincial average. At the same time, the senior citizen population is almost five per cent higher.

More Retirees

"This large demographic bulge in the population will soon swell the ranks of retirees, and the areas most affected will be Counties such as Northumberland."

"Because of the pleasant, semi-rural nature of the County and its proximity to the Greater Toronto Area, it is a natural draw for people considering retirement. It is therefore reasonable to expect the ranks of seniors in this area to continue to increase at a rate above that of the provincial average."

According to the report, the goal of Community Transportation is to deliver transportation services through the co-ordination of existing local area resources. It goes on to say that cars, mini-vans, taxis, ambulances, transit and para-transit buses, school buses, motor coaches can all be involved in the community transportation system.

The plan says transportation providers can include the private sector, health and social service organizations, municipal services, non-profit agencies and service clubs. The people involved in the co-ordinated effort may be full-time, part-time or unionized employees, or volunteers.

"The restructuring of publicly-funded services, such as hospitals, where people have to travel further to obtain services, has made responsive transportation a fundamental need," the report points out.

It also noted that people drive less as they get older, yet expectations for personal independence have increased in the past decades. And rightly so. "Studies prove that when people are both physically and mentally active, they also remain healthier. This, in turn, puts less of a strain on families, on health services and on taxpayer costs."

To Create Linkages

The plan calls on the creation of a transportation scheduling database to provide information to organizations on options for co-ordination through Info Northumberland. Efforts will be made to create linkages between all areas of the county, especially central area Colborne, Cramahe and Haldimand.

Campbellford tykes look sharp with 5-1 record

The Campbellford Tyke A team, sponsored by Canadian Tire, is off to a great start in minor hockey. As of Oct. 23th, the young Colts had a record of 5-1 with all but three players in their rookie year.

Hats off to the Campbellford Minor Hockey League for putting more skill and safety back into the game.

Game One—On Oct. 9th Colts trampled Haylock 14-2. Campbellford goal scorers were Jordan McEvoy (8), Kyle Newton (3); Ben McKeown (2) and Zack Patfield.

Game Two—At Stirling Oct. 10th, the Colts edged Stirling 8-7. Campbellford goal scorers were Kyle Newton (2), Jordan McEvoy (4), Ben McKeown and Keegan Forestell, one each. Dillon Murphy scored four times for the Blues.

Game Three—On Oct. 16th, Campbellford turned back Marmora/Madoc 16-0. Goal scorers were Jordan McEvoy (6), Jed Sharpe (4), Kyle Newton (3), Jake Locke (2), Keegan Forestell (2).

Game Four—On Oct. 17th, the Colts visited Haylock and skated off with an 8-0 victory. Campbellford scorers were Kyle Newton (3), Douglas Little (2), Ben McKeown (2) and Zack Patfield (1).

Game Five—On Oct.

Three information sessions will be held in Cobourg, Brighton and Campbellford to raise awareness and to train potential drivers.

A 1-800 number for transportation information has been installed through Info Northumberland and will be promoted county-wide. A transportation resources pamphlet will be developed and presentations will be made to municipal councils and agencies.

The team plans to raise awareness of the need for transportation dollars with all levels of the community, including government, service clubs and individuals.

The end result is that by informing, educating, networking and providing basic training, the Northumberland Community Transportation Team will have created a solid base upon which to build an integrated transportation system.

One of those key members to endorse the project is Chris Grayson, Executive Director of the Campbellford and District Association for Community Living. He says: "The CDACL will continue to be actively involved in the planning and implementation of this project as we realize that available transportation for all is a part of a healthy community."

23rd, the Colt tykes hosted Norwood and managed a 3-1 victory on goals by Jed Sharpe, Ben McKeown and Eliza Crothers. The Norwood goal came on a breakaway by Steven Nash on a pass from Justin McWhinnie.

Game Six—On Oct. 29th, Colts visited Trenton and suffered a 7-1 defeat at the hands of the hometown tykes. Campbellford worked hard but had only two lines to Trenton's three lines and this eventually took its toll. Only Colt scorer was Jed Sharpe with assists to Lucas Peters and Jake Locke.

Leading the Trenton attack were Brock Baragar, Brandon Chabassol and Tyler Depellaro with two goals each.

If you are tired of hearing about NHL labour disputes or frustrated with players holding out for more money, a Colt team official suggests coming out and watching the local minor hockey action. The effort each of these players puts out every game will remind you of the purpose of playing—the love of the game itself.

FALL & WINTER HOME IMPROVEMENT

A homeowner's guide to heating oil tanks

Oil heat customers can be confident that they have an abundant, secure and safe supply of dependable fuel right on their property. When properly maintained, a heating oil storage tank will provide decades of worry-free safety, security and peace of mind, says the Canadian Oil Heat Association.

"It is completely safe to have a heating oil tank on your property when the tank is inspected and maintained regularly," says the association's president John Butt.

explaining that heating oil is liquid, non-flammable and non-explosive up to 40 degrees C. Properly installed and maintained oil tanks can last 20 to 40 years. Aboveground storage tanks made in the last 15 years are dated and certified by the Underwriters Laboratory of Canada (ULC), and labeled.

"If a homeowner suspects his oil tank is over 20 years old, we suggest he call his oil heat dealer for a tank inspection, and if necessary discuss replacement options and learn about new tank sizes and styles," says Butt.

Tank replacement costs will range from $650 to $900 for a new tank built to last at least 20 years.

According to the association, most consumer inquiries are about insurance. An oil tank that is properly installed and maintained is not a concern for most insurers, says Butt. Any homeowners having trouble insuring their heating oil tank are encouraged to contact the Canadian Oil Heat Association for the names of insurers.

Other tips from the association: Keep your tank in good condition and have it inspected annually.

• Protect the tank and its components by watching where you place objects and do not use the top of tank or the area around the tank for storage.

• Fill your tank in the summer months: a partially empty tank in warm weather can cause condensation to build inside the tank, which will cause corrosion.

Tips on what to look for when inspecting your roof without a ladder

• For homes with asphalt shingles, look for black areas indicating cracking shingles.

• For homes with shake or shingles, look for pieces that are curled upward, split, broken off or missing.

• For homes with slate roofs, look for black areas that indicate slate is missing.

• Look for heavy wear around the valleys, the place where water runs off the roof into the gutters.

• Look at the materials around the chimney and vent pipes and check for cracks, gaps and missing or fractured caulking.

• Check eave overhangs for water damage.

• When cleaning gutters, look for loose granules or chips, which indicate a roof is balding.

• Conduct an interior inspection for stained or discoloured ceilings, which likely indicate roof problems.

Tips for a healthier home

• Reduce or remove as many asthma or allergy triggers from your home as possible: pay attention to dust and mites. Many problems can be prevented by ensuring surfaces are clean and preventing or eliminating sources of dampness, which can encourage the growth of mould.

• Consider the building products used in your home, as many can emit harmful gases or particles. These should be kept to a minimum. Storage of chemicals and cleaning agents should also be limited to the garage whenever possible.

• Proper ventilation is key to good indoor air quality. Ensure that all ventilation systems, including vents, duct work, heating and cooling systems, air filters, etc. are cleaned and maintained regularly. The air can also be cleaned with systems like the HEPA (High Energy Particulate Air) air cleaning system, which removes airborne particles and common household allergens such as pet dander, pollen and mould.

• Insulation is one of the major building products that has a long-term effect on the air you breathe. Insulation is able to create an airtight seal in your home, without any harmful emissions. In tandem with mechanical ventilation it will control humidity and reduce growth of mould. It can also significantly improve energy efficiency.

Fair theme exemplified in special ceremony

Heritage and future of Fair in good hands

Asphodel-Norwood - On the first day of the 131st Norwood Fair a ceremony took place, quietly and without fanfare, that exemplified the spirit and theme of this year's Thanksgiving weekend event -- "Our Heritage-Our Future."

Grant Forgrave of Campbellford, a competitor in the poultry classes at the Fair for the past 30 years, presented a new trophy for the Best White Leghorn in the show to Donna and Kevin Gallagher.

Donna and Kevin live in Verona, Ont. and are relatively new to the hobby.

Grant retired this past year and dispersed his flock and Donna and Kevin had the good fortune of purchasing his last white leghorn rooster.

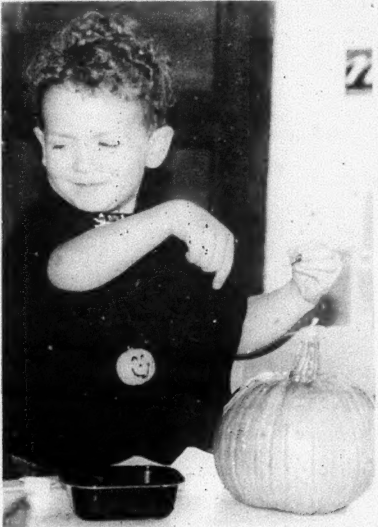

The very rooster that would earn top show honours at this year's Fair. It was, to say the least, a thrilling moment for both the Gallaghers and Mr. Forgrave.

The Gallaghers also introduced a new exhibitor the Norwood Fair show. Tye Smith an 11-year-old showman from Verona who walked away with several prizes.

With the Gallaghers continuing in the proud footsteps of Mr. Forgrave -- and Tye Smith showing his youthful competitive spirit -- the future of the Norwood Fair is in very good hands indeed.

Immunization program under way

Last month, Medical Officer of Health, Dr. Alex Hukowich, issued letters to all long-term care facilities in the area requesting they develop policies to ensure staff and volunteers are immunized. If staff refuse to be immunized, and do not take medication available to fight influenza A, Dr. Hukowich says he is prepared to issue orders requiring facilities to suspend those employees from work during an outbreak of influenza.

"It is not possible to eliminate every risk to our health," said Dr. Hukowich. "But if there is something we can do to lessen the risk we should be doing it, and immunization lessens the risk of catching and spreading influenza."

At the conclusion of the presentation, Dr. Hukowich presented Mitchell and CDC nurses Linda Wakeman and Heather Harnden-Russell with a framed painting from the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit. The painting had been given to the CDC nurses by the neighbouring health unit in appreciation for their recent work with the refugees from Kosovo.

Massage Therapist offers alternative health care

by Laurie McVicar

Havelock - In a time of doctor shortages, health care cuts more and more alternative forms of therapy are emerging for people suffering daily with aches and pains.

David Cooper has dedicated his newly opened home practice in Havelock to help bridge the gap left by government budget slashing. A graduate of the Recreational Leadership program at Loyalist College and the Massage Therapy course at one of Ontario's top academic schools, the Kawartha Centre for Integrated Health Education.

"My hours will be from nine to five throughout the week. I almost treat every injury from carpal tunnel to whiplash, back strain and migraine headaches," explained Cooper. "I also have a whirlpool here for use as well as a lot of muscle stimulation equipment."

According to Cooper, the treatment he provides can sometimes be covered under extended healthcare, the Green Shield Plan or auto insurance.

Cooper's interest in massage therapy began after his brother pursued a career in chiropractic.

"He introduced it to me four or five years ago and I became interested in it," said Cooper.

Unfortunately, he was not able to get into school right away due to the high enrolment often associated with the massage therapy course. Instead of taking a year off, Cooper obtained a diploma in business at nearby Sir Sanford College and then applied the following year at the Kawartha Centre for Integrated Health Education.

It was the Leadership course which really drew Cooper into the line of work he has chosen.

"It got me working with the public and helping them with exercise programs. That didn't seem enough, I would put someone on an exercise program, they would be off for two weeks and I'd never see them again. This way I can help with their routine. I can really make a difference. I still put (clients) through an exercise routine but I see more results with this type of healthcare," said Cooper.

Massage therapy can provide several benefits said

Cooper including pain and stress relief and increased time of recovery for injuries. This aspect is of particular importance to both seniors and athletes.

"Every client that comes in here gets a case history taken, you get a full assessment at no cost with ongoing assessments regularly. You can get the full treatment plan which entails remedial exercises which is stretching or hydro therapy which is hot and cold application and maybe certain other homecare... I do treat arthritis - osteoarthritis, rheumatoid arthritis," stated Cooper, adding that there are sliding rates for seniors and students to help subsidize their payments.

"Another thing I treat is the terminology is trigger point therapy or fibromyalgia," said Cooper. "It's basically short, tight muscles that send pain to other areas. So, what you've got is short, tight upper traps that may shoot pain down your arm. A lot of people may think it's arm pain but it's coming from the shoulder."

Cooper considers himself a primary practitioner. "A person can come up with a back strain, I am specifically trained to do assessment. If I find out that there's a slip of a disk or a disk problem I will refer that person to an appropriate person," said Cooper.

Anyone wishing to contact David Cooper for an appointment, can do so by calling 705-778-7696. His office is located at #555 Mary Street in Havelock.

New age healer: Massage Therapist David Cooper has recently opened a new home practice in Havelock. Cooper, who refers to himself as a general practitioner, treats a number of problems including arthritis, whiplash and migraine headaches. Enjoying a relaxing massage is Cooper's fiancée Erin Campbell. Photo by Laurie McVicar.

KEEP YOUR DISTANCE FROM FALLEN WIRES

Ice storms, high winds or fallen tree limbs can bring hydro lines down. Even a fallen wire that seems dead can be dangerous. Stay away from the wires, warn others to keep clear and call your local hydro or the police to report the fallen wire as soon as possible. If there's a live power line touching your vehicle, stay inside until a hydro crew removes the line, putting even one foot on the ground can be a fatal move to make. If you must leave because of fire, jump clear without touching the car and the ground at the same time. For advice or assistance, call our Customer Communications Centre at 1-888-664-9376 or visit our website at www.onhydro.com for more safety information.

Citizens settle Dombind dispute with Norampac Inc.

Ontario's Environmental Appeal Board approved a settlement on October 21st reached among citizens, the Ministry of the Environment and Norampac Inc. that will provide strict limits on the application of Dombind dust suppressant, a waste from the company's Trenton mill. The approval follows an extraordinary decision released in August whereby the Appeal Board granted the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations, Quinte Watershed Cleanup and seven individuals the right to appeal a Ministry order served on Norampac. The Appeal Board had found that the weaknesses of the order's provisions relating to the application of Dombind were "very serious" and allowed the concerned groups and individuals to proceed with an appeal.

Once the appeal right was granted, all sides came together to discuss a settlement. The settlement, which is implemented through a binding order issued by the Appeal Board, includes far better environmental protection provisions than the original MOE order that the Board found deficient.

"This is a significant victory for the citizens group we represent," said Jerry DeMarco, staff lawyer with the Sierra Legal Defence Fund, whose legal team represented the three groups and seven individual residents of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties who sought to appeal the Dombind order under Ontario's Environmental Bill of Rights (EBR).

"We are delighted with the Board's approval of our proposed settlement - this is a huge improvement for the environment and for people over the ordinary originally issued by the Ministry," said Ric Symmes, Executive Director of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists.

Citizens and municipalities across Eastern Ontario have raised concerns about Dombind's toxicity. They have argued that Norampac should, like its competitors, install environmentally appropriate waste treatment technology at the Trenton mill, instead of spreading the liquid waste on rural roads. The amended MOE order approved provides better environmental protection for waterways and wells, requires the production of publicly-available maps where Dombind may be spread prior to its use and includes better enforcement measures. All these changes will help reduce the risks of Dombind use until its phase-out is complete in less than two years. "The appeal board has confirmed the validity of the applicants' concerns about the MOE order and approved the settlement to amend its key provisions," said DeMarco. DeMarco also noted that the board seldom grants requests for leave to appeal under the EBR.

October 23rd our Novice DD Grizzlies played host to Colborne. Both teams fought hard in first period action. Colborne came out of nowhere with 15 seconds left on the clock and made it a 1 to 0 hockey game for the visitors. In the second the battle continued, but neither team got on the board. The game was nearly over when Colborne scored again. With 1:13 left on the clock, Brandon Dillon found the mark for the home team, unassisted. The final decision was 2 to 1 for Colborne. It was a well played game and a "hats off" goes out to Brian McNabb who put on quite a show in the pipes.

Later that Saturday afternoon the Atom DD team took to the ice. Colborne was once again the opposition and once again the home team put on a heck of a show. The first two periods of the game belonged to Colborne. The Cyclones managed to get three in on our Atom Grizzlies and things didn't look good going into the third. Then the visitors popped in another on a power play opportunity. It was late in the third that the Grizzlies started their comeback with a beauty goal from Cody Chambers, passed up by Tyson Terrior. With 1:57 left Anthony Tapper blistered in a power play goal off the sticks of Chad Stein and Patrick Sharkey. The 4 to 2 loss was a little disappointing for the Atoms, but they put up a good fight!

- upgrade intersections and entrances;
- replace culverts;
- provide drainage and grading improvements;
- upgrade guide rails to current standards and review other potential safety improvements;
- undertake Moira Lake bridge rehabilitation;
- review potential alternatives for alignment corrections;
- review need for traffic operations improvements;
- review truck climbing lane needs; and
- review need for illumination and other electrical improvements.

THE STUDY PROCESS

This Study will follow an approved planning process, according to the requirements of the Provincial Highways Class Environmental Assessment for a Group 'B' project, with the opportunity for public input throughout. Notices will be published with respect to the date, time and location of the public meetings. If no significant detrimental environmental effects and/or concerns are identified through contacts with agencies and the public during the process, then reduced documentation may be considered and an Environmental Study Report (ESR) will not be prepared. A notice of completion will be published upon completion of the study. If you feel that serious environmental concerns remain unresolved, you have the right to request that the project be subject to an Individual Environmental Assessment. This decision rests with the Minister of Environment.

Councillor Grant then questioned if when this study is completed if the problem at Deloro and in the Moira River will be fixed?

Barbara Theman, Public

JOWETT, MARY ANN
Passed away suddenly at the Belleville General Hospital on Friday Oct. 22/99. Mary Ann Jowett of Wellington Crescent, Belleville in her 78th year. Beloved wife of the late Alfred Jowett. Loving mother of Nancy King and husband Michael of Belleville, Barbara Jowett of Ottawa. Loving grandmother of Lisa McDonnell and husband Kevin of Tweed, Kirk Pickett of Ottawa, Michelle Daniel and husband Jerry of Orangeville, Julian King of Toronto and great grandmother of Ryan McDonnell of Tweed. Resting at the Thompson Funeral Home, 38 Everett St., Belleville. At the request of the family there will be no visitation. Cremation with interment of ashes in White Lake Cemetery, Thompson Funeral Home 962-8651.

Relations for the MoE, explained work is being done now to fix the problem.

Herrick elaborated that "this study will show us what the Moira River system is like now." Herrick stated they need to tell people who are concerned whether there is any risk to them and their family.

Joanne Lewis, Constituent Assistant to MPP Leona Dombrowsky, asked Herrick if, because one study was done in 1969 and the other is being done now if it will provide a clear comparison?

Herrick said they are doing the same sort of things now that were done in the late 60's but the equipment is much better now than in the past.

Herrick explained they have been doing bottom core sampling as well as sediment sampling from top water levels, particularly where swimming takes place. With the bottom core sampling Herrick explained they do an analysis of that core every five centimetres which provides a system where they can tell, approximately, when those contaminants became part of the core sediment.

Herrick commented that Moira Lake is very, very rich in nutrients which makes it a good fishing lake. "I'd rather have smaller fish and cleaner water," John MacDonald, a member of the Cottagers Association, stated.

Herrick pointed out that the province is on record saying that the river system has to be cleaned up. He said the amount of attention this problem has received has intensified and "this river system is getting a lot of attention. The province has given a lot of attention to facing this problem."

Centre Hastings Reeve Tom Deline stated a study is simply a study that will tell you what's in the river but it's not going to fix the problem.

"I think we're kind of tired of studies," Deline told Herrick.

Bob Eickmeier, another member of the Cottagers Association, stated, "We can't let this thing die."

thing done before I die," MacDonald said. "Results are what we need."

Herrick explained when it comes to the risk assessment and health study they look at the environmental impact to see if it contains levels of metals that are higher than standard. If they are found to be in excess then they have to look at how people may come into contact with that contaminant such as drinking, swimming and eating the fish.

The results, Herrick explained, will either show there isn't a risk or there is. If the screening risk assessment shows there is undue risk then there will be a full health assessment.

Barbara Theman reminded those individuals at the meeting that the point was to discuss public consultation and they should be looking at a feasible way to do it.

Reeve Deline agreed the key thing is to let people know what the study results show.

Theman said the Ministry wants people to be able to give them feedback and going out lets them hear concerns from people and allows them to answer questions about the clean up.

The final report will be done in January and it is then sent to a peer review panel so the Ministry "can be sure the product is what we expected and we can send it out to people with confidence," Theman stated.

Theman explained the Ministry was looking at two basic options, one to go out with an open house meeting and another to have a more targeted approach by getting Municipalities to select representatives to do a detailed review.

Reeve Deline explained they have to ask themselves how they can best get the information to people. He added January was a bad time to hold open meetings because cottagers wouldn't be in the area.

Theman corrected Deline and said once the results go to the peer review it would be late spring before they were ready to hold open houses.

Deline said Centre Hastings would be willing to do a mailout or post it on the web-page because they need "some form of direct contact with the property owner."

Herrick added the report that will go out to the public will be in layman's terms so it can easily be understood. Deline agreed that was in the taxpayers' best interest. He said it's easier to simply tell them what they can and can't do.

John MacDonald agreed and said there was no sense in sending out 55 pages because it wouldn't be read, simply send one page.

Herrick agreed with all the points and added, "Good, bad or indifferent this is going to be a public report."

Councillor Dale Grant said he thought it should be a one page insert that goes in with taxes and also noted a technical report should be available to anyone who wants one.

"I think we've got a very good sense that you'd do a targeted mailing system," Theman stated.

Glen Hudgin of the Hastings Prince Edward Health Unit said one surprising thing that came back from the survey was the fact that some people indicated they use the water for drinking. That's a concern because of bacteria and arsenic in the water.

"It's a standard device that people don't drink surface water," Hudgin stated.

Herrick said even the MoE doesn't feel the people should be drinking the water and said he tried to contact the three people who said they were drinking it. One had moved, one was fine and healthy and the other couldn't be reached. He stressed people should be reminded this is a river system with trouble in the past.

It was agreed that Centre Hastings and Stirling would mail out the results along with a note informing people they should not be drinking the water due to bacteria. Tweed would mail a separate letter to their affected residents concerning bacteria and it was unclear what would be done in Marmora due to the fact no one attended to represent that municipality.

Driving and drugs in Madoc school zones

A Madoc Township man is to appear in Belleville court on November 25th to face charges of driving while impaired by drugs and possession of a controlled substance after being arrested on the morning of October 22nd by Centre Hastings OPP in front of the Madoc Public School.

Rodney Bradshaw, age 21, left Centre Hastings Secondary School, drove past a fully marked police car, then failed to stop at a stop sign. Police followed Bradshaw who then pulled over in front of the Madoc Public School.

Investigation into the traffic offence revealed that Bradshaw was carrying a small quantity of marijuana and was in fact under the influence of the drug.
